AUTHOR FIRST-HAND OBSERVER AT COURT

GUY JONES
... "a great job"

Welsh-born Guy Jones, author of "The Queen's Baby" is married to a Scots-woman and lives in England. Since his mother came from Ulster, he can safely claim to represent all sections of the United Kingdom.

Rising Fleet-Street-writer Jones, 36, has proved that it is possible to write fascinatingly about the British Monarchy without stooping to sensationalism.

Jones himself says, "I am first and foremost a Fleet Street man. I also have a considerable respect for the Monarchy in general and the Queen in particular. This is based on first-hand observation of court affairs."

"Happily, I can reconcile my duties as a newspaperman with my loyalty to the Crown. The Royal Family does a great job."

BEGINNING:

THE QUEEN'S BABY

First Child in 103 Years Born to Reigning Monarch

By GUY JONES

Crowds will surge outside Buckingham Palace one day soon to catch a glimpse of a bare official notice. It will tell Britain and the Commonwealth whether the Queen's third child—the first to be born to a reigning British sovereign for 103 years—is a boy or girl.

How, if at all, will this news change the line of succession to the Throne?

If the Queen's baby is a boy, he will be second in line to the Throne, after the 11-year-old Prince of Wales. If a girl, she will rank after Princess Anne, 9, as third in succession—a place now held by Princess Margaret.

So whether the baby is a boy or a girl, the birth will shuttle Princess Margaret, who is 29, back to fourth place. After her will come the Duke of Gloucester—the Queen's uncle, 59, then the Queen's cousins, in order—Prince William of Gloucester, 18, Prince Richard of Gloucester, 15, the Duke of Kent, 24, Prince Michael of Kent, 17, and Princess Alexandra of Kent, 23.

Curiously, the 19th and 20th in this royal "Top Twenty" are a baby daughter born in June this year to the Duke and Duchess of Fife, and King Olav of Norway, 56, who is grandson of King Edward VII.

Boy or girl, the baby will be legally styled "of Windsor."

Seven years ago the Queen declared in Council that she and her children should be styled and known as the House and Family of Windsor and that her descendants, other than female descendants who married, and their descendants, should bear the name of Windsor.

The baby will also be born with the title of Royal Highness and Prince or Princess of Great Britain. Should it be a boy, he will, no doubt, be created a Royal Duke at the age of 21.

There are, however, curiously few former Royal ducal titles available. Prince Charles is both Duke of Cornwall and Duke of Rothesay; Edinburgh is a Royal Dukedom; and Cambridge has virtually ceased to be one.

A Boy Could Be 'Duke of Ottawa'

Two others stand out as being available—the Royal Dukedoms of York and Clarence. Since both her father and grandfather before succeeding to the Throne were Dukes of York, the Queen will obviously prefer the former title.

It has been suggested that he might also be given a Commonwealth title. And since Canada is the senior Commonwealth nation, he could become "Duke of Ottawa."

The position will be vastly different if the baby is a girl. As Princess Anne would be the elder daughter it is practically certain that one day she will become the Princess Royal (the present Princess Royal, the Queen's 62-year-old aunt, is 11th in line of succession).

So any sister she may have would simply be known as Princess.

Then again, boy or girl, the whole situation will change if Prince Charles marries and has children. In that event, the right of succession would pass to his descendants.

This can be illustrated by the tortuous route by which the present Queen came to the throne.

In 1892 the Prince of Wales' eldest son, the Duke of Clarence, died unmarried at 28. His younger brother, the Duke of York, thus inherited the succession.

The Prince of Wales succeeded Queen Victoria as

'Stew' to Get Equal Billing

OTTAWA (UPI)—The federal government is cracking down on misleading labels on food containers.

The new regulations being brought in by the food and drug directorate of the health and welfare department require canners and packers to tell the housewife exactly what she is buying.

This will cut out much-criticized practices like that of printing "beef" in larger type than "stew" on beef stew containers.

The net contents of the package will have to be marked on the main panel of the label.

The new labelling laws also will require the common name of a food to be printed in identically-sized print after the name of a food if it contains more than one word, like asparagus cuttings or flaked tuna.

ONE PLACE
The complete list of ingredients will have to be shown in one place instead of scattered over the container.

The new regulations also state that the size of type used on the label must be in proportion to the size of the label.

The drug directorate has given firms two years to use up stocks of existing labels before they have to come up with new ones.

A-BLAST WARNING TO PLANES

PARIS (UPI)—The government announced today it has warned international air carriers that fly over Africa to stand by for a 12-hour notice of restricted areas before explosion of France's first atomic bomb in the Sahara.

The announcement indicated the test will be carried out soon, possibly before the widely speculated dates of February or early March.

$2,500,000 EXPECTED

University Ups Target

Bennett Offer To Get Action

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Target in the Victoria University Building Fund drive is certain to be raised to $2,500,000 from $1,500,000 following a campaign dinner inaugurating the drive.

Campaign chairman R. B. Wilson said today the executive committee will meet Monday to discuss Premier Bennett's offer at the dinner Friday night to match every dollar raised up to $2,500,000.

"I feel it is inevitable we will accept the Premier's proposal," Mr. Wilson said, "and we are calling the committee together to discuss it formally."

Premier Bennett made his surprise announcement to a distinguished audience of 150

representing Victoria, Vancouver Island and Vancouver at the dinner in the Union Club.

"This government will gladly match, not $1,500,000, your present objective, but $2,500,000 over a period of five years."

"If you raise the $2,500,000, we will match every dollar on the basis of not more than $500,000 in any one year."

The Premier's offer was received with resounding applause from every corner of the room.

Old Buildings Gift From Province

He added that the government would transfer the old Victoria College buildings, administered by the B.C. public works department, to the board of governors of the new university.

"The transfer will be made absolutely free of charge," he said.

Introduced by Mr. Wilson as "the biggest shareholder in this enterprise," Premier Bennett said he did not agree with the idea of putting up temporary buildings on the college's Lansdowne campus to provide accommodation for the big influx of new students next September.

"Keep away from temporary buildings," he advised. "Start planning now and begin building as soon as possible so that you will have some real buildings next September."

The Premier also disagreed with an earlier statement by Dr. A. E. Grauer, chancellor of the University of British Columbia, that it might be hard to raise $1,500,000 for the new university.

'No Place in B.C. Has More Money'

"There is lots of money in British Columbia and no place in this province has more money than Victoria."

He said financial experts at first advised the UBC development fund to seek only $2,000,000 while the provincial government offered to match monies raised up to $10,000,000.

"Today the UBC fund is approaching $10,000,000."

He urged that the new university should be called the University of Victoria and that it should co-operate at all times with the University of British Columbia.

Dr. George Edward Hall, president of the University of Western Ontario, who was guest speaker at the dinner, said:

"Victoria College, within the great University of British Columbia, is a significant part of the university structure of Canada."

"Its 57 years of growth, its survival and its present development is a monument to its founders and a reminder of its greatness in the making." (See Page 13.)

Advance Donations of $200,000

Mr. Wilson gave the campaign a spirited send-off by announcing that already, before the campaign was officially underway, they had commitments amounting to nearly $200,000.

The faculty and staff of Victoria University had subscribed $27,604 towards the fund.

Four professors had pledged $5,808—an average of $1,470 each.

Fourteen assistant professors had pledged an average of $1,470 each.

Judge J. B. Clearihue, chairman of Victoria University Council, and Mrs. Clearihue had pledged $5,000. Individual gifts included one for $7,500 and others of considerably higher amounts had been promised.

"Already several industrial firms have signified their generous support with pledges and cash in line with our hopes."

"We have received one donation of $25,000 and one of $50,000. One local firm has indicated a pledge of $25,000 provided there is a comparable effort by others in the community."

"In a campaign of this size," said Mr. Wilson, "many gifts will be spread over a period of years. Our objective is to receive most of the money within the first year."

ready we have indications that many will be using a five-year period. And a longer term will be available for those who desire it.

"The income tax provisions are an incentive for both persons and corporations."

'THOUSAND DAYS' TO MARS AND BACK

LONDON (AP)—Soviet scientists have worked out the cosmic route for a flight to Mars and back, Moscow radio reported today.

Prof. Dmitry Martynov was quoted as saying that such a trip would take about 1,000 days.

He said the flight to the planet would take 275 days, the spacemen would have to spend about a year there awaiting a favorable opportunity to take off again, and the return journey to earth would take another 275 days.

"A trip to the nearest planets is quite feasible," Martynov said.

"The atmosphere on Mars contains carbon dioxide, oxygen and a certain amount of water. The temperatures are relatively moderate, reaching 20 degrees centigrade (68 degrees Fahrenheit) during the day on the equator and falling to minus 60 at night."

"Life is possible, and there are signs of vegetation, and, possibly, micro-organisms. The only planet in our solar system where man could find acceptable living conditions is Mars, and it is no coincidence that it is now attracting so much attention from astronomers throughout the world."

Foes Forget Differences In Well Wishes to 'Nye'

ANEURIN BEVAN
... everyone loves him

LONDON (AP) — Aneurin Bevan, the bad boy of British politics, has learned in illness that everyone loves him after all.

The 62-year-old fighting socialist, with his keen sense of irony, must find some humor in the situation as he stares at the ceiling in his room at London's Royal Free Hospital. He underwent a major stomach operation Dec. 29.

In the hidebound London clubs where once the mere mention of his name touched off apopleptic rages there are references now to "good old Nye."

Get-well notes keep pouring

In on him from Conservatives as well as socialists. Men who have clashed with Bevan for years openly express relief as the medical bulletins indicate he is recovering his health.

The fiery Welshman's absence from the public arena—even temporarily—brought home to political friends and foes alike how much color and drama he lent to the scene at these years.

Bevan is still a full-blown socialist. His beliefs still stir up controversy even within the ranks of his own Labor party. But he is not regarded as a party rebel any more.

LONDON (AP) — Peterborough United, little-known team of part-time footballers, won 3-2 at Ipswich today and led five giant-killers into the fourth round of the Football Association Cup, Britain's most glamorous soccer tournament.

Peterborough, a 5,000-to-1 shot against winning the cup, snatched the winner against Ipswich with only three minutes to go.

Inside right Ron Emery sidefooted the ball over the snow into the net—and Peterborough was through to the next round.

In other upsets, Bradford City blanked Everton 3-0, Watford defeated Birmingham City 2-1, Port Vale ousted Cardiff City 2-0 and Southampton romped over Manchester City 5-1.

Every year the cup throws up its giant-killers. Peterborough, the team considered too weak for a place among England's league teams, is the shock squad this time.

Bath City, the only other non-league survivor in today's third round, lost 1-0 to Brighton.

Rotherham United trailing first division Arsenal 2-0 early in the second half, scored two goals in nine minutes to force a 2-2 tie.

Newcastle inside right Bobbie Eastham scored Newcastle's equalizer two minutes after halftime and grabbed a 2-2 tie against Wolverhampton Wanderers in the top-draw match of the day. A sellout crowd of 62,350 turned out for it.

Scratch victory
Cup holders Nottingham Forest scraped through to a 1-0 victory over Third Division Reading. Little Reading missed a penalty nine minutes from time.

Luton Town, defeated in last year's cup final, scored two second-half goals to win 2-1 at Exeter.

English League leaders Tottenham Hotspur, favorites to win the cup, defeated Newport 4-0.

Manchester United, another favored team, romped to a 4-2 victory at Derby. Chelsea

WINNIPEG—Man! What a mixed-up date!

An eight-year-old boy named Dennis, loaded with the grand total of $205, took seven-year-olds Sandra and Margaret to a movie Thursday.

After the movie, he put Margaret on a bus and paid her fare. Turned out it was the wrong bus and she didn't get home until 11:15 p.m., after the bus driver called police and got her an escort.

Young Sandra disappeared after walking Dennis home. Fifteen policemen searched for hours, but didn't find her until Friday morning when they rechecked the boy's home and found her sleeping behind the bathtub.

Neither the boy nor his parents knew she was there. Sandra had been staying with another family while her parents were out of town.

Edward VII and his son, the Duke of York, later followed him to the throne as George V. He was, of course, the present Queen's grandfather.

In 1936, George V died and was succeeded by his eldest son, the present Duke of Windsor, as Edward VIII. Less than a year later he abdicated.

He was then unmarried and the succession passed to his brother, King George's second son, who became King George VI.

Had King George VI not married, and had children then his brother, the present Duke of Gloucester would have succeeded him on his death in February, 1952. But he did, and his eldest child, Elizabeth Alexandra Mary Windsor, thus became Queen Elizabeth II.

Succession to First-Born Son

Constitutionally, the succession goes to the first-born son—a custom called primogeniture. Should the eldest son die, then the next eldest succeeds him. Only when there is no son can a daughter succeed to the throne.

Apart from Queen Victoria, whose nine children were all born after she became Queen, there has been only one Queen Regnant in Britain to have a child after ascending the throne.

She was Mary, Queen of Scots, mother of James I and VI. In fact, the only other Queen Regnant to have children at all was Queen Anne (1702-1714), but all her offspring died before she became Queen.

The new baby will, in fact, be the first born to a Queen Regnant since April 14, 1857—the birthdate of Princess Beatrice, last child of Queen Victoria. Both Charles and Anne (Nov. 14, 1948, and Aug. 15, 1950, respectively) were born before the Queen's accession.

What will the third child be called?

Royal circles are buzzing with tips. But the choices are spread far and wide. Among them: (For a boy) Albert, James, Andrew or George; (for a girl) Victoria, Mary, Charlotte or Elizabeth.

But it is fairly certain that names for the child have not yet been decided by the Queen and Philip.

Albert or Victoria are suggested because the Queen, a fervent admirer of her great-grandmother, is known to have a strong liking for both names.

But, then, if the present revival of Jacobite names (Charles and Anne are two) is continued, it is possible that James or Mary might be chosen.

A New Name for the Royal Family?

Then again, George might be favored, even though it is one of Prince Charles' names. George was after all the name of the Queen's father and grandfather. For a girl, Elizabeth is another possibility. Again this is one of Princess Anne's Christian names, but royalty has never shown hesitancy in repeating a name already held as a secondary name by another child.

Some royal circles expect a boy to be called Andrew, after his paternal grandparent, Prince Andrew of Greece, and a girl Charlotte, known to be favored by both parents and sufficiently unorthodox to fit royal names out of the rut of precedence.

But the Queen and Prince Philip are also known to be liberal in "name outlook." So it is quite possible that they may decide to introduce one new to the Royal Family.

What are the chances of a boy or a girl? According to the doctors, they are about equal. But the Royal Family shows a slight preponderance of boys.

King George III had nine sons and six daughters, Queen Victoria four sons and five daughters, Edward VII two sons and three daughters and George V five sons and one daughter.

But Prince Philip's father, the late Prince Andrew of Greece, had four daughters and only one son.

Whether it is a boy or a girl, there can be no doubt that its arrival is being eagerly awaited by both parents. It is understood that the royal couple want four children—two boys and two girls.

And there might be an omen in the fact that both wanted first a son and then a daughter.

She said she had gone to dances at the hall before. On this occasion she was with two girl friends, both white.

sonal and corporation giving and it is hoped that many will increase their pledges because of this favorable situation.

"We should remember that every dollar we give means two for the campaign."

He said $3,300,000 would be used to provide a science building, a library building and a heating plant.

The need for this additional space is indeed acute. Victoria College is literally bursting at the seams with a student population this year of 1,661 and an anticipated enrollment of 2,000 within the next three or four years.

The college would this year take its place among Canadian universities as it began program in arts, science and the teaching of a full-degree education.

First Degrees

"A convocation" will be held here in 1961 for the first presentation of degrees. These will be highly respected degrees of the University of British Columbia.

Mr. Wilson spoke of the fine spirit of co-operation and respect existing between UBC and Victoria University.

He rejected the suggestion in some quarters that a university in Victoria would be "duplicating" facilities at UBC.

"In spite of the rapid expansion at UBC, the weight of numbers weighs heavily on our campus and this building program is necessary to relieve the pressure there. It has the full support of UBC governors."

He pointed out that Victoria's business world would benefit since the institution operates on a budget of $1,000,000 a year and, with additional enrolments and new buildings, would probably reach $2,500,000.

'Big Industry'

A student away from home spends about $1,200 in a year. More than a third of the students are from outside the Greater Victoria area. So, if the new buildings were not provided, many students would have to journey elsewhere for a portion of their education.

"This project will circulate a tremendous amount of money and is the kind of industry we have been looking for. And... in providing Grade 13, Victoria College is very likely saving the local school board, and the city and surrounding municipalities, somewhere between $60,000 and $70,000 a year."

Mr. Wilson said the building of a university on Vancouver Island would fulfill a dream that had persisted since the days of the early pioneers.

"If we fail it will be because we have not measured up to the imagination and pioneering spirit of our forefathers, and we will, indeed, have become a city of lotus eaters."

Principal Dr. Harry Hick

man recalled that it had been an integral part of the city's history for 57 years — ever since Mrs. Henry Esson Young taught the first seven students in 1903.

Mrs. Young, a gracious white-haired lady sitting just in front of the head table, acknowledged this compliment with a bow and a quiet smile.

"Dr. Hickman emphasized that the new university, so far from being parochial or insular, would attract students from many areas."

"Three years ago I made a plea for public support of UBC," he said. "Now they are supporting us."

Dr. Grauer referred to Victoria University and UBC as comparatively young institutions which had achieved miracles in their short history.

"But," he said, "when we look at what the Russians are doing it should cure us of any dry-drot complacency."

High Standards

Dr. Norman MacKenzie, president of UBC, said he and his colleagues had aimed to make UBC the best in Canada and one of the great universities of the world.

"We believe education and particularly higher education is more important than anything else. The more education the better for the country."

He said Victoria has "a fine institution with first-rate standards," which had reached the stage where it should take on the status of a university.

"And I hope it will retain its close association with UBC."

They included Harold B. Elworthy, W. Alan Pendray, Kathleen Agnew, Reeve G. L. Chatterton, Princess Chikhina, Rear Admiral H. S. Rayner, Mrs. R. D. Harvey, Hon. R. W. Mayhew, Mrs. Frank Ross, Bishop James M. Hill, Sara Spencer, Hon. T. C. Davis, Walter C. Koerner, Mrs. C. J. Martin, Reeve George Murdoch, Reeve A. C. Wurtele, W. Stanley Moore.

Modern Tempo

Too Fast

For Musicians

The accelerated pace of modern living has forced many great musicians into a position where periodically they must "drop everything in order to catch up with music and themselves."

Dr. Boyd Neel, world-famous conductor and dean of the Faculty of Music at Toronto University said Friday.

Here to conduct Victoria Symphony Orchestra Sunday and Monday, Dr. Neel was addressing a meeting of Victoria Lions Club.

A physician as well as a musician, Dr. Neel said: "I think I am the only living person who has conducted a concert in the West End of London, and on the same night delivered a baby in the southeast section of the city."

Dr. Neel said at that time he had a large practice in medicine, but was so devoted to music that ultimately he had to choose between the two.

"I chose music," he said.

BONNER REJECTS PROBE

'Nothing Wrong' Says Gagliardi

VANCOUVER (CP)—Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi insisted Friday there is nothing wrong with his administration.

"They can order 15 or 50 royal commissions into my department — I couldn't care less," he said.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said that although Mr. Gagliardi has been accused of contempt of court, all he did was to follow correct legal advice.

Both ministers made their comments on demands by Liberal leader Ray Perrault and Progressive Conservative leader Deane Finlayson that a royal commission inquire into the highways department.

Mr. Gagliardi, has been accused of contempt of court by Vancouver lawyer K. E. Meredith, who has filed notice of application to the court to have the minister's commitment to jail.

The contempt is "alleged to have occurred when the highways department paid a contractor money which a court ordered should be handled by a trust company."

Mr. Finlayson and Mr. Perrault each suggested that Mr. Gagliardi himself should ask for a royal commission.

Said the minister: "Under no circumstances will I order a royal commission. Royal commissions are to find out something being done wrong. There is nothing wrong in my department."

He said that although the attacks on Mr. Gagliardi were personal, the court matter does not affect him personally.

"It was a purely routine matter and highways department officials acted in accordance with legal advice that a garnishee does not bind the Crown," he said.

He said that although the attacks on Mr. Gagliardi were personal, the court matter does not affect him personally.

Berlin Protests Nazi Revival

BERLIN (AP)—Thousands of Germans, angered by outbursts of anti-Semitism plaguing the West German Republic, demonstrated openly Friday night against sneak hate-mongers and Nazism.

U.S. EAGER FOR EARLY SPACE MEET

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States is reported pressing for an early meeting of the new United Nations space committee in an apparent move to test Soviet intentions on international co-operation in outer space.

The Americans have consulted the Russians and other UN delegations about the chance of convening the 24-country space committee before the end of January.

The Russians are said to have balked at giving a definite answer until they get instructions from Moscow.

The move to get the new committee operating was made before the Russians announced their intention to hold rocket tests over the central Pacific within a few weeks.

The Soviet tests, however, are expected to lend new urgency to American demands for an early meeting.

Liquor Rights Extended In N.W.T.

OTTAWA (CP)—Equal liquor rights for all residents of the Northwest Territories will be provided in amendments coming before the 18th sessions of the Northwest Territories Council here Monday.

The amendment to the territorial liquor ordinance will bring the legislation into line with recent decisions of the territorial court and changes in the Indian Act.

Thus, Indians, Eskimos and whites share rights for beer and liquor in the few outlets now available in the vast area comprising about 40 per cent of Canada's land total.

Dreams Shattered As Tree Rips Through the Roof

A trailer dweller got the fright of his life and his car and trailer were heavily damaged when a tree crashed through the roof of his trailer, 210 Island Highway, Friday morning.

B.C. Forest Products night shift worker Roy Morberg, about 25, of Greenwood Court, was startled violently from sleep when a large jack-pine which was to be felled snapped its restraining cable and came down to puncture the roof of the trailer and damage the car.

It also caught a corner of a cabin.

There was no injury.

APARTMENT FIRE SPARKS CITY ACTION

Wiring Study Ordered

A study aimed at streamlining electrical wiring inspection procedures was ordered by city public works committee Friday.

It followed a report by city engineer James Garnett regarding a fire last month in a Bay Street apartment building caused by faulty wiring.

The city fire department had notified the city inspection office months earlier that the wiring should be checked, but a shortage of staff prevented the work being carried out before the fire, he reported.

Ald. A. I. Curtis suggested a survey be made to determine whether the city could compel apartment owners, particularly old houses converted into suites, to call in electrical contractors to correct defects after they are spotted by fire department inspectors.

He said this would speed things up because the situation would not be left dormant until the electrical inspectors had time to follow up the fire department report with a detailed examination as at present.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood also said a study should be made to determine who set electrical specifications.

"Is it the federal government, provincial government, the city or makers of electrical equipment?" he asked. "It seems you can build a house today and tomorrow the electrical system is declared out of date without in any way being unsafe."

The last three decades have brought many changes in matters pertaining to health. The normal span of life has been increased materially. Consider diabetes, for example. Diabetes was first recognized about the time of Moses, or 200 years before the birth of King Tut. It was not until 1921, however, that a specific remedy was discovered.

Today, through the use of insulin and a balanced diet, the diabetic can reasonably expect to live about as long as anybody. Your physician will promptly recognize the symptoms of diabetes. He knows all about the treatment. And remember this, all advertised cures for diabetes are questionable. Don't be victimized.

'TURNCOAT DIPLOMAT' WANTS TO VISIT U.K.

LONDON (AP)—Guy Burgess, one of two British diplomats who defected to Russia nine years ago, wants to return to Britain—but only for a visit.

The Daily Mail says Burgess expressed the wish in a telephone interview from Moscow Friday night but insisted on a promise of safe return to the Soviet Union.

"It is clear I couldn't get good work in England," he told the paper. "I've got a good job here (in Moscow) and I'm perfectly peaceful."

Burgess, who fled to the Soviet Union with fellow diplomat Donald Maclean in 1951, is a consultant for a Russian publishing firm.

TO HELP WORLD CHILDREN

Record Sum Collected For Unitarian Fund

OTTAWA (CP)—The world's underprivileged children received more help from the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada last year than ever before, Dr. Lotta Hirschmanova of Ottawa, executive director, stated in her annual report issued Friday.

She said more money was raised and more clothing was shipped than ever before in the committee's 10-year history.

A total of $240,000 was raised for relief work, compared to $207,000 in 1958, and 269,000 pounds of clothing were collected, against 266,000 shipped in 1958.

She said the committee failed to meet its $250,000 goal because many persons donated to the work of World Refugee Year, and because crop failures in the West curtailed farmers' donations.

The unusual gifts included money sent by a woman in place of a new dress she needed, and another from a woman who sent money rather than decorate the graves of her family members.

A total of $7,502.47 raised by The Victoria Daily Times newspaper in a Christmas appeal went towards the construction of a physical rehabilitation centre at the Sam Yook disabled children's home in Seoul, Korea.

In a move to discourage neo-Nazi activity in the Rhineland, government officials banned a convention of the extreme rightist German Reich party scheduled for Kaiserslautern Sunday.

The officials noted that two members of the party are under arrest for the desecration of a Cologne synagogue.

In West Berlin, a 49-year-old city housing official, Alfred Straats, was slapped with a 17-month sentence for giving the Nazi salute before a group of rightist youths.

TORONTO (CP)—A second Toronto synagogue was painted with swastika signs early today in defiance of a police patrol set up Friday after the first incident occurred.

He said many buildings might require complete and expensive rewiring when the B.C. Electric underground wiring project in the downtown area is hooked up for operation.

Mr. Garnett said owners of buildings requiring new wiring were being notified by the B.C. Electric.

B.C. Farm 'Haven' Offered to Chan

VANCOUVER (CP)—A woman has offered to share her 400-acre farm with a fugitive Chinese and his family and says she has told Prime Minister Diefenbaker about it.

Harry Fan, lawyer for Weldon Chan who is thought to be hiding in a church basement somewhere in Eastern Canada, said the offer was received from Mrs. C. G. Harvey of Driftwood Canyon near Smithers, 350 miles north of here.

Chan has been in hiding since he evaded a deportation order which would have forced him, his wife and five-year-old daughter to return to Hong Kong in November.

The family came to Canada on visitors' visas 19 months ago and the immigration department denied their application to become permanent residents.

Mr. Fan said he will have to come out of hiding soon because his money is running out.

Mr. Fan says Chan wants postponement of the deportation order so he can fight for his right to stay in Canada.

Mrs. Harvey wrote to Mrs. Chan, who is recuperating in the country from the nervous strain caused by her family's plight, that the ranch has horses, cows, sheep and a big herd of goats.

"I do not know whether you would like farming, but if so, we would be happy to have you and your husband to come and work along with us on a 50-50 basis if the government allows you to stay in Canada."

"I have written to Prime Minister Diefenbaker about this and he might persuade the minister of immigration to change her mind."

Meanwhile, Douglas Jung, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Vancouver Centre who Chan is attempting to sue for libel, has filed an application in Supreme Court to have Chan put up a deposit for Jung's travel from Ottawa and legal fees, if Chan should lose.

WENNER-GREN PANEL TALKS SET BY LABOR

Discussion on the contentious Wenner-Gren proposals to develop B.C.'s northland will be held next Saturday in the Labor Hall, 613 Pandora, starting at 9:30 a.m.

The panel talks, sponsored by the political education group, Victoria Labor Council, are planned to include representatives of both the Social Credit and CCP parties.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan and Pat O'Neal, B.C. Federation of Labor secretary, have agreed to participate though no Social Credit panelist has yet been nominated.

"This will not be a debate," said VLC secretary-treasurer A. W. Tpoone. "We want it to be a free discussion with both sides of the proposal brought out for the benefit of our members."

Mr. Fan said he will have to come out of hiding soon because his money is running out.

SOMETHING IMPORTANT

IS HAPPENING HERE!

Mark likes equally well the study of civics and his newspaper business. And he likes to talk man-to-man with his father about both. Last night, Mark said: "Dad, selling newspapers is important." When his father agreed, Mark continued: "Without newspapers—free to print the truth about public affairs—people would not know enough to govern themselves. So, when I hand a newspaper to a customer, I am doing something toward protecting our democratic way of life." Mark's father was pleased—but not surprised—at the way in which his son had tied together something which he had learned in school and at home with an experience on his newspaper route. It happens regularly. His route collections and bookkeeping help Mark in math; approaching customers makes public speaking easier. What suddenly seemed quite wonderful to Mark's father was that while his newspaper boy son learns and earns, he also is performing a vital service to the community.

Quebec's New Leader

THE NEWSPAPER CORRESPONDENTS and political pundits had picked several other men as possible successors to the late Paul Sauve as premier of Quebec. The appointment of Mr. Antonio Barrette surprises the whole nation outside French Canada and shows how little it knows about the inner politics of our second largest province.

Outside French Canada little is known, either, about Mr. Barrette. His life, now reported for the first time in the English-language press, is as surprising as his appointment.

He must be a very remarkable man indeed. Leaving school at fourteen years of age to work as a telegraph messenger for five cents an hour, Mr. Barrette at the age of sixty is a scholar living with a private library of 5,000 books. In a province and among a race passionately opposed to conscription in the First World War, he supported it. If he is a man of learning he must also be a man of courage.

That courage was shown in his quarrel with the late Maurice Duplessis. As minister of labor he opposed the Quebec premier's treatment of striking miners in Gaspé and, after that incident, seldom attended a cabinet meeting or the legislature. Only a man strong in character and also in political support could thus have defied the all-powerful boss of the Union Nationale who apparently did not dare to dismiss his rebellious colleague.

Just how and why the survivors of the Duplessis and Sauve cabinets came to choose Mr. Barrette is not told in the news stories from Quebec City. More important and intriguing, what sort of policy will the new premier follow in his relations with the Federal Government? Few things could be more important in national policies where harmony between the two great races of Canada must always be a primary objective.

Mr. Sauve, in his brief, spectacular premiership, had drastically changed the Duplessis line of hostility to any Federal Government. Will Mr. Barrette follow Mr. Sauve's lead or return to a narrow provincialism and so-called "autonomy"?

The indications are that the new premier will continue the general attitude of his immediate predecessor and intimate friend. If so, he will become immediately a useful force in the nation's life, whatever label he wears in politics.

Obviously Mr. Barrette is a Conservative, dwelling in that assorted political residence which calls itself the Union Nationale. He has supported Conservative candidates in national elections. He is a friend of Mr. Diefenbaker.

In the new premier the Diefenbaker Government no doubt sees its best chance to consolidate its Quebec support. Having no strong Quebec leader in its own ranks, the Government must largely depend on the man who controls the Union Nationale and, through it, a well-oiled political machine.

Still, it will be something of a miracle if that machine is not seriously damaged by the death of two leaders within a few months and the elevation of a third from obscurity.

The provincial Liberals, never able to threaten Mr. Duplessis, think they have their chance at last. If they could unseat the Barrette government in an election this year, or next, they would greatly affect the balance of national politics. But that is a big "if" so early in the new premier's regime.

Once More, With Feeling

PREMIER BENNETT'S BLAND statement of a few days ago that there would be "no increase in taxes" this year is producing strange, choking sounds from the throats of countless home-owners across the province.

A few days ago they received their 1960 assessment notices. In Oak Bay, for instance, these reveal an average increase of 4½ per cent on standard homes and as high as 12 per cent on so-called "luxury" homes.

It is one thing for the harassed home-owner to meet these steadily-increasing costs every year; but another, and peculiarly galling, to be told by the Finance Minister that the whole thing is a mirage and doesn't really exist.

Although the municipalities will doubtless be blamed for the increases, the fact is that they were compelled to make them, under a new set of depreciation factors promulgated by the government assessment commission. This schedule postulates, among other things, the quaint belief that homes do not depreciate at the same rate; that standard homes depreciate more rapidly than "luxury" homes. Any realtor could advise them that the truth, more often than not, is exactly the opposite.

What redress is open? Past experience has shown that individual appeals get very short shrift, unless the owner can point to some vivid incompatibilities in his own neighborhood. It is only on a group or area basis, where masses of citizens band together with legal counsel to protest inequities, that any hope of justice lies.

In the meantime, the Premier's statement that there is to be "no increase in taxes" must be regarded as a very odd description of the facts, and an affront to thousands of homeowners who will have to dig down, once again, to provide funds for these tax-ravenous legislators.

Canada's Interest First

VARIOUS INTERESTS AND politicians are criticizing Premier Bennett for refusing to rush before the National Energy Board to fight the export of Alberta natural gas to California. His critics say he should oppose applications for the Alberta gas and champion export from British Columbia.

The criticism is unjust. Mr. Bennett is acting wisely.

It is one of the duties of the National Energy Board to favor the interests of one province over another. The Board must concern itself only with what is good for Canada, the whole nation. What purpose then, to have Mr. Bennett appear as a special pleader for British Columbia?

While he is under attack, his critics might remember that when one part of Canada benefits from a development such as the planned gas export, all parts benefit.

In this instance, Mr. Bennett is behaving like a Canadian.

Mr. Green Takes Priority

NORTHERN AFFAIRS MINISTER Alvin Hamilton is quoted by Premier Bennett as favoring the Peace River power project over the Columbia plan. The federal minister praised the Wenner-Gren scheme in Vancouver this week, and saw the province, rather than the federal Government, as the agency which would decide between the two great programs.

In this Mr. Hamilton, already notorious for his gaffes when serving as a Government spokesman, is in direct conflict with External Affairs Minister Green. Mr. Green is Canada's representative in negotiations with the United States for an agreement on use of the Columbia River and has made it clear that he believes the Columbia to be the sounder scheme.

"The Columbia deal is so good for B.C. and Canada," Mr. Green said. "I sometimes wonder why people try to poke it full of holes. It is better than the Peace because the Peace is a private venture."

Equally important, Mr. Green added that "Canada's export policy (on hydro power) would not be modified to suit one group of promoters, you can be sure of that."

The latter reference holds the key to the situation. The Peace River promoters have said they must export power if the scheme is to be feasible. Mr. Green says the Government ban on power exports will not be changed. This obviously puts the Columbia project well out in front of the Peace as a practical development. It also puts Mr. Hamilton in the position of talking out of turn.

As Our Readers See It

Pre-Christian Festivals

If some of the supporters of the Christian Myth had studied the origin of religion they would not be so eager to rush into print.

The two chief holy days of the Christian religion, Christmas and Easter are astronomical events and were celebrated for centuries before the Christian era.

The 25th of December was celebrated by the sun worshippers and represented the winter solstice. They could see with the naked eye, four days after the 21st, that their sun god was returning to give them warmth and new life. They rejoiced in the return or rebirth of the sun god. This date was adopted by Christians as the birth of the Son of God. Easter, of course, represents the vernal equinox.

Philosopher Bertrand Russell has said, "The whole ancient world morally deteriorated when it adopted Christianity."

LOOSE ENDS

A Conservative Myth Explodes, a Second Giant Emerges

AFTER completing his magnificent biography of John A. Macdonald, Professor Donald Creighton lapsed into a bitter little essay to support a private grievance. So far, he said, Canadian history had been generally written from a partisan standpoint by a conniving group of Liberals to beatify Mackenzie King and Wilfrid Laurier, and to underestimate all Conservative statesmen. The Macdonald biography was designed to set the record straight as a final verdict free of bias.

Hutchison

BUT lately a second biography, equal to Professor Creighton's in scholarship and more lively in its writing, ventures to question that verdict. In the first volume of his life of George Brown (The Macmillan Company of Canada) Professor J. M. S. Careless finds a good many warrants missing from the portrait of Macdonald. If Professor Creighton has reason to quarrel with a Liberal myth, Professor Careless takes a Conservative myth and gently explodes it.

To be sure, the events in the first half of Brown's life are far behind us now and after a hundred years of experience we can regard him and his victorious rival not as party politicians but as national possessions, their greatness, belonging to all of us.

STILL, it is obvious from one of the finest books ever written by a Canadian that Brown has been a much misunderstood man. It will do Macdonald's reputation no harm to appreciate that in the fierce Reformer and human volcano of Upper Canada he found a foe man worthy of his steel—perhaps, indeed, that without Brown's fire the massive lifework of Macdonald could not have been smelted.

At any rate, the historic caricature of Brown as a cranky, humorless, inhuman sort of person, a political text on legs ("The Creighton version" is stripped off, layer by layer, while some of the excessive gilt is politely removed from the accepted picture of Macdonald.

Brown was probably too scrupulous, or at least too consistent and theoretical, for the brawling, inchoate politics of the newly-united Canadas, the embryo of Confederation. To a subtler, more flexible and no doubt greater man like Macdonald, the Reformer must have appeared impossibly logical, rigid and stuffy, but all that was confined to Brown's public life. In his home and among his friends he emerges as a warm human being, brimming with animal spirits, humor and tenderness.

ON the other hand, though he has always been credited with these qualities in abundance, the character of Macdonald, in his apprentice days, is marred by a streak of bitterness, even meanness, of the kind usually credited to Brown. Few passages in our history are more distasteful than Macdonald's attempt to ruin Brown by the cheap slanders and cooked evidence of the Kingston penitentiary scandal. And yet nothing is more comforting to the admirers of Macdonald than his regret and apology for a passing fit of malice.

Apart from the personal contest of the two giants who dominated the life of Durham's unworkable Canadian experiment, the Brown biography corrects some popular public fallacies.

IN the accepted myth Brown is represented as hungrily scheming and grasping for office only to find his government rejected by parliament in a single afternoon, his greedy ambition rightly rebuked, his career shattered.

The truth, as Professor Careless proves from the unpublished record, was that Brown had been compelled to take office, with the gravest misgivings, or wreck the coalition of Reformers which he had managed somehow to put together after years of struggle.

Thereupon he was tricked by Governor Edmund Head, who refused him a well-deserved dissolution and new elections (an intriguing forecast of events to come, in 1926). The famous Double Shuffle, arranged by Macdonald next day, was possibly the crudest exercise of double dealing in the annals of a province whose politics make those of our time seem blameless and immaculate.

ANOTHER legend of distortion comes through clearly in this excellent book: Though it was Galt, a changeable Conservative, who first introduced the idea of Confederation formally into parliament, the Carleton Macdonald ministry gave it only lip service and deliberate delay while Brown and his new Reform party had thought their way by this time to the conclusion that there must be Confederation or dissolution of the two Canadas.

Moreover, it was Brown, far sooner than Macdonald, who grasped the essential fact that Canada must possess the West and reach the Pacific. The legend has it just the other way around.

Settlement of the Steel Strike Aroused Mixed Feelings

THE steel strike has been called off in a way which leaves the public without any means of determining whether the result is just or unjust, wise or unwise. It is evident that the companies lost the strike. But there does not exist any impartial and dependable report on the issues which enables anyone from the President down to know whether the companies have conceded more than they could afford to concede.

Lippmann

For the President has steadfastly refused to countenance official fact-finding as the basis for a settlement. As a result, no one really knows what the Nixon-Mitchell settlement means.

The President, so he said last July, has been acting on the notion that there must be no government intervention because "we have got thoroughly to test out and use the method of free bargaining." We have now had the test. What happened in the test?

What happened was that the government intervened in the person of the Vice-President. He used the carrot for the union and the stick for the companies.

He coerced the companies into yielding not all but most of what the union was fighting for.

Moreover, it would appear, he induced them to agree that they will not raise steel prices at least until after the election. The strike was not settled by "free bargaining." It was settled by a political fix.

The President, whose mind has not been on other things, seems never to have realized that in this struggle the process of free bargaining was exhausted very early in the day—almost certainly by July when the strike actually began. It was evident from the beginning that the two great monopolies were committed to a test of power, not to a process of bargaining. The test was which of them could hold out the longer against the other.

In July when the strike began there were reasons for thinking that the companies were the stronger. Their customers had large stockpiles. Labor unions were unpopular as a result of the McClellan exposures. The public was opposed to another round of wage-price increases. And there was some question whether Mr. McDonald was in solid control of his union.

But as time went on the balance of power began to favor the union, chiefly because, I imagine, it was increasingly evident that if Congress had to intervene to settle the strike, it would not be very tender with the companies.

It is significant that the Nixon-Mitchell intervention succeeded because they were able to threaten the companies with the certainty of Congressional action.

So we have come to a crude and embarrassing ending to an inglorious and mismanaged policy. I have reason to know that it is denied in official quarters that the strike could have been settled any earlier. But I think it is arguable from the record that a settlement on the Nixon-Mitchell terms could have been had at any time.

All that was required was to give labor the carrot of the concessions and then to do to the companies what Mr. Nixon did to them, to use the big stick of a threat of special legislation in Congress leading to some kind of compulsory arbitration.

If the President had realized that the period of free bargaining had ended even before the strike began, the second strike could have been handled by measures which were rational, which protected the public interest, and enlightened public opinion. By July there should have been an official fact-finding report on the issues and official recommendations for the settlement.

When that report had been debated, and a predominant public opinion had been formed about it, the next step would have been to enforce the findings by calling on Congress to grant the power to do so.

Presumably, it would not have been necessary to go so far as to call Congress into special session or to use the powers if Congress were called and the powers were granted. The Nixon-Mitchell deal shows that the threat to do all these things would probably have been sufficient.

In acting in this fashion the administration would have stood on the solid basis of an impartial report, and this report would have had to deal with the crucial question that Mr. Nixon has left up in the air.

This question is whether or not the concessions to labor are inflationary in that they justify and require a rise in steel prices. If the report had found that the concessions were inflationary but that some smaller concessions would not be, the union would have been forced by the threat of compulsory arbitration to accept the lower terms.

All in all, we can be glad that the strike is not to be resumed. But there is nothing else to be glad about. (C) 1960, N.Y. Herald Tribune Inc.

AFTER THE NEW YEAR BOASTS

What to do When Atrocity Is the Work of Educated Men?

IN Greek tragedy the audience learns to expect the worst whenever the protagonist begins to puff out his chest and say, "What a clever boy am I." Just at the moment when Oedipus or Orestes thinks that everything in the garden is lovely, along comes First Messenger in a fetching little tunic to spoil it all, and down comes the ceiling. Overweening pride in one's own achievements is the cardinal sin for the Greek tragedians; they had a word for it, of course: hubris. The sin brings rapid and condign punishment, which punches home the moral: "Don't count your chickens until you have finished the sacrifice."

Emery

About hubris they were never wrong, the old Greeks. If you doubt this, ponder the present state of the so-called civilized world. On the heels of the proud boasts that ushered in the new year, and the large claims that were made about past progress and future triumphs—provincial, national, international and extra-terrestrial—comes the outbreak of anti-semitic manifestations which reminds us that while some members of the human race are on tiptoes to reach the maximum intellectual potential of which homo sapiens is capable, other members of the same race are still drooling along on all fours, indulging in behavior of a kind which is not found in the lowest animal.

The fact that the most recent neo-Nazi demonstration in Germany found morons willing to play the sedulous ape as far away as Vancouver and Australia has caused some observers to believe in the existence of a well-organized worldwide conspiracy.

While I do not underestimate the strength of neo-Nazi and neo-Fascist organizations in Europe and elsewhere, I am inclined to doubt whether this squalid epidemic of irrational hatred has any firmer basis than the tenuous web of envy and purulent malice that links the dim-witted, semi-literate brotherhood of Morons International.

The great strides in communication that we pride ourselves on enable successive crazes to sweep the young people of the world. The majority of these little lunacies are utterly harmless, alarming as they may appear to some adults, and in time they vanish, giving place to some new oddity.

However, among the millions that make up the juvenile population of the Western world there is a proportion of implacable young gorillas, burning with resentment and full of violent hostility.

Most of these hoods pour this resentful energy into antisocial behavior of the kind that we lump together under the vague term "juvenile delinquency"; many of them vent their spleen upon one another in gang warfare of enormous internecine ferocity.

Disturbing as these violent phenomena are, I think they are less to be feared than certain other manifestations because they are the result of socioeconomic conditions which can, eventually, be cured. Society is responsible for the poverty and the overcrowding in our great cities that breed the crime and violence. I have referred to, and Society has got to shoulder that responsibility before we go much further.

The really worrying thing about the anti-Semite, the anti-Negro, the anti-Catholic, the anti-Oriental, is that he prides himself on being intelligent, on being educated, often in comfortable circumstances, and sometimes in an official position. Rebuilding the slums is not going to change the attitude of these people; being totally irrational, they are beyond the reach of reason.

I shall not defend every action ever committed by every Jew. Why should I? Who would doubt that there are Jewish dogs, just as there are English, Scottish, Irish, Serbian, Greek, and Panamanian dogs?

At the same time there are two facts that cannot be controverted: one is the massive contribution to the world's science and art, music and literature and religious thought made by men of Jewish faith and race; and the other is that the pages of history, full as they are of the record of man's inhumanity to man, has nothing to set beside the ceaseless and senseless persecution of the Jew by the Gentile.

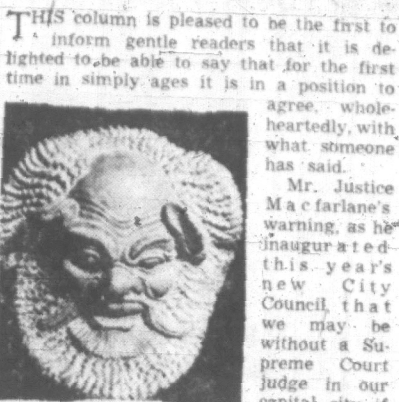

You doubtless heard the voice of the anonymous Jewhater in Vancouver, recorded as he mouthed his vituperation over the telephone. As I heard this stream of imbecile and unreasoning hatred being uttered in a hoarse, uneducated English North country accent, I had a vivid mental picture of the slums from which the speaker had obviously come.

Something, as I have indicated, can be done about this. But another picture, which I do not willingly recall, came back to haunt me.

I am looking out of the barred window of a cattle-truck as it jogs slowly past a train load of Jewish men, women and children packed tightly into boxcars. "They are moving us East," says an old man, when he learns we are British.

East lies Auschwitz—a short, animal life, and a cruel death. Yet this atrocity was the work of educated men: of a school teacher and a doctor of philosophy, among others. What are we to do about that?

SILENUS

THIS column is pleased to be the first to inform gentle readers that it is delighted to be able to say that for the first time in simply ages it is in a position to agree, wholeheartedly, with what someone has said.

Mr. Justice Macfarlane's warning, as he inaugurated this year's new City Council, that we may be without a Supreme Court judge in our capital city if a current trend continues, is something every Victorian should consider carefully. As George Warren knows so well, that upstart Gastown on the mainland seems to have a fixation on the subject of size. I suppose in times gone by the dimosaurs who roamed the world had the same thought, that size was everything. We who live here and have the time to form considered opinions, are not I feel, in agreement.

"Steady there! Perhaps his Lordship was only sounding an alarm. Let's not get too excited until we learn more; if anything more is to be learned. Easy now!"

"Easy, he says. Easy, schmeasy! There's been a sight too much of it! Aux armes, citoyens! Stop the rot!"

"There's no point in getting excited. Keep your feathers on. Above all, keep calm. This is a serious matter, and requires thought, not rhodomontade, brouhaha and hurlement. Taisez vous! Attendez!"

"Have you ever read the Supreme Court Act?"

"Selected portions only, as the need arose."

"Ha! Well, I bet you never read the part which says one judge must live in Gastown, and one judge in Nelson."

"Never heard of a judge living in Nelson."

"Neither have I. But never mind that. It only says one need live in Vancouver ... er, Gastown."

"Well, the inference is that the others can live here, where they belong. What are these judges, men or mice, that they don't seem to want to observe the laws?"

"Perhaps no one of them wants to live in Nelson, and so have declined to raise the point."

"Well, forget Nelson. The point is that this is the place for the judges to live, except for two, who must live in exile on the continent. Brrr! That poor man in Gastown! As a longstanding friend of judges generally, the thought fair makes me heart bleed! DUNCAN 'HOT SPOT' OF PROVINCE AGAIN?

DUNCAN—This community which boasted the warmest average temperature in the province in 1958 may be heading for similar honors for 1959.

According to local weatherman F. R. Newham, average mean temperature here last year was 51.64 degrees compared to 55 degrees in 1958. But precipitation during 1959 totalled 40.88 inches compared to 46.27 inches in 1958. Hottest day last year was July 31 when the mercury soared to 98 degrees. Coldest day was Jan. 3 when the mercury plunged to 10.

Isolation Feared If Ferry Takes Ramp

Coal Island residents at Swartz Bay today opposed a suggestion that the provincial government purchase property where the present land ramp of Coal Island Ltd. is situated beside the Gulf Island ferry wharf.

"If they take the land they will isolate the island," a company spokesman said.

"We have a lot of money tied up in equipment. They might as well take our equipment and island as well."

He was commenting on a remark made by Saanich MLA John Tisdalle.

Mr. Tisdalle had said the Coal Island property was the logical site at Swartz Bay for the new ferry wharf and administration building.

He added, however, this statement was not official, but was made as a real estate man.

City waterworks committee Friday decided to try to sell 76.45 acres forming the eastern corner of Thetis Lake Park to B.C. Electric Co.

The company asked for a 26-acre strip easement through the east side of the park for a transmission line but city engineer James Garnett recommended that the whole triangular corner be sold.

The easement would seal off the corner from public use in any event, he said, so the city should try to sell the land and use the proceeds for developing the main section of the park.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said he had been in the eastern corner and "it's just for wild goats. There's nothing but mountain and swamp and a broken arm and other people can't get in anyway," juries.

FORMOSAN HOME ONCE IN 2 YEARS

Life on Ocean Wave ISLAND DIGEST

Victoria Daily Times SAT., JAN. 9, 1960 5

Herring Trade Urged With Japan

Nine months away from home may seem a long time for most Victorians, but Capt. C. H. Chow, skipper of the motorship Union Capital considers he's lucky if he "hangs up his hat" once in two years.

The Formosan captain, whose ship is undergoing repairs at the Graving Dock here, said he couldn't complain about his present trip at sea when some ships' crews never saw home port in three years.

"But that is the life of crews of cargo ships," he said. "We are resigned to it."

BIT HOMESICK

But he did admit that some of his men were feeling a bit homesick.

His stay in Victoria was prolonged when the hull of his vessel was pierced by a rock on Dec. 19 near Kelp Reef in the channel west of San Juan Island. She should put out to sea a week Monday.

The Formosan motorship is owned by the Chinese-operated China Union Lines Ltd. Marine superintendent for this time is a former Victorian, Capt. Y. H. Chan, a member of a pioneer Chinese family who settled in Victoria in the 19th century.

Mr. Chan's relatives, including his mother, still live in Vancouver and Victoria.

Capt. Chow had nothing but praise for Victoria.

"My crew has been treated well here," he said. "The Chinese community also has helped us to pass the time away."

While he shied away from discussing the political situation in the Orient, he did have a lot to say about Formosa, the seat of the Nationalist government, but which he prefers to call the Chinese Republic.

MORE TRADE

"It is a mistake to call us Nationalists," he said. "We are Republicans."

Capt. Chow said there was a possibility of trade increasing between Formosa and Canada.

Formosa, he said, was short of pulp, lumber and wheat.

On the subject of tourism, he felt that more Canadians should visit Formosa.

"We have the climate," he said, "and our scenery is also beautiful. We have plenty of hot springs. I'm certain Canadians would enjoy themselves in Formosa."

Safe Stealer Gets 3 Years In Prison

DUNCAN — Joseph Gerald Pellerin, 31, unemployed father of three, Friday in police court was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary for breaking, entering and stealing a safe.

He pleaded guilty to the charge.

The 200-pound safe was stolen Sunday from the B.C. Telephone Co. office. It contained about $200 in cash and cheques.

The smashed safe was found on Drinkwater Road in the bushes.

Nanaimo Youth Fined For Impaired Driving

NANAIMO—Lionel Beevor Potts, Jr., 18, nephew of Nanaimo's magistrate, was fined $100 and had his driver's licence suspended a month when convicted of impaired driving.

He appeared before Justice of the Peace Fred Steeds.

ISLAND VIEWPOINT

(Gulf Islands Review)

Problem which faced drivers on Mount Newton Cross Road for a time has been experienced in North Saanich. Users of roads in the area have reported a sequence of incidents when school children have crowded across the road to catch passing cars to come to a halt.

The children then jeer at the driver as the car is grudgingly permitted to pass. Having once been children ourselves we are well aware of the need for amusement nevertheless, we feel that this form of merriment is too one-sided to be generally acceptable. It also brings with it the danger of injury or death.

Teachers and parents should take steps to warn youngsters against this practice and avoid the need for police action. It must be stopped.

Spelling

Saanich Star

A reader of The Star writes this week on the problems of spelling. The telephone directory circulated by the B.C. Telephone Company is no assistance in encouraging accurate spelling, she notes in view of its extensive abbreviations.

While the suggestion is irrefutable, it is likely that the company had not previously seen itself in a tutorial light. The reader goes on to note a spelling of a medical centre in Saanich. Depredations of time, greatly assisted by those of youth, have resulted in the loss of a series of letters from the announcement outside the centre. The result is a sign: "MEDIC L DEN L."

Community Hall

(Cowichan Leader)

When Canon Brian Page told the inaugural meeting of Duncan city council that the town and district needed a modern auditorium he touched on a community facility which might be fairly easily obtained.

Under an existing agreement with the federal agricultural department, an exhibition hall can be built for 30 cents on the dollar with the Cowichan show group. Moreover, the local commitment might be reduced to 25 cents, as the provincial government will match the federal government's contribution for any approved scheme.

Here then is a prize to be sought. The biggest cost to this community would arise from interior finishing of the building, installation of a heating plant and such facilities as a kitchen and required seating.

As Pioneer Park and the exhibition grounds are slated for joint development for exhibition purposes, the site is ready and waiting free of charge.

Canon Page's suggestion is timely. The high school auditorium is being used increasingly for student activities.

ed more and more by their congregational groups. The curling rink is usable only during the spring and summer seasons and the Armoury building has almost outlived its usefulness for community gatherings.

Far from this being a wild dream, there is a distinct possibility the community could achieve such an objective by careful planning.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Decline in Pawnshops

LONDON—Short takes. Final proof that folks have "never had it so good": In 1951, when the Conservatives came into power, there were 214 pawnshops in London. Each year since then the number has gone down until in the last 12 months period only 153 were issued.

Great hit with women is the new "gondola" shopping basket. They're to be seen everywhere, these baskets which depart from the conventional in having the handle run end-to-end instead of across and which have the vague shape of a gondola.

Over 500,000 have been sold since the fashion caught on last summer and now they're being imported at a rate of 6,000 a week to keep up with the demand. An average $1.75 each; they're woven mainly in Yugoslavia. Why is it that the women go for them so much, since they're more cumbersome than the everyday basket and packages are harder to get in and out of them? It's the latest vogue, that's all.

What happened to dept. Remember Luise Rainer? If you were around before the war, you would. This Austrian actress with the intense, dark beauty made Hollywood history by winning a Best Actress Oscar two years running—with "The Great Ziegfeld" and "The Good Earth."

But she couldn't stick the artificiality of Hollywood and walked out in 1939. And that was the end of her film fame. She lives now in a mouse flat in London's fashionable Knightsbridge area with her book-publishing husband and her teenage daughter.

Now, at 46, has she any regrets at having done the unforgivable thing of snubbing Hollywood? "I must admit my present life doesn't absorb me," she says. "But here in England very few parts have been offered to me. I must say it has been somewhat of a surprise and a hurt to me."

CCF Wins 'Election'

TORONTO (CP) — University of Toronto students Friday voted the CCF party to power in a model Parliament election for the first time in the history of the elections.

The CCF, whose platform called for a national health plan, won by a 148-vote margin. Last year the Progressive Conservatives won by more than 300 votes.

The CCF platform also called for banning of nuclear weapons in Canada.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Upswing DragsBy GREG MACDONALD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Canadian stock markets ushered in the New Year in an indecisive manner this week amid the heaviest trading in recent months.

Although showing signs of an upward swing, the Canadian markets continue disappointing in view of the strong tones New York has shown in the last few months.

However, two of the strongest drawbacks on the market have been removed. The U.S. steel strike, settled earlier this week, had been one of the reasons quoted by investors as holding the market back. The other was year-end tax-selling which had been greatly affecting western oils. The removal in late December of this factor has resulted in an upsurge and buying power had definitely picked up.

Still overhanging the markets are the current tight money policy and the forthcoming U.S. presidential elections.

Industrials which began the week with a gain of nearly three points on index finished with a disappointing drop of more than a point. Base metals and golds were both strong throughout the week and showed increases.

Two bright spots among industrials involved offers for acquisition of shares of oil refining companies.

On Thursday Shell Oil Company purchased control of North Star Oil, a western firm. The stock soared 10 points at 33 1/2 on Wednesday's close of 22 1/2.

ESRO PURCHASE

On Friday Esso Standard Inter-American Inc. offered to purchase all outstanding common shares of International Petroleum at $45 U.S. a share. The stock immediately streaked up 10 points at 42 1/2 on a turnover of only 125 shares.

Seaway Hikes

Cargo 71%
In First Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Cargo moved through the St. Lawrence Seaway in the 1959 navigation season showed an increase of 71 per cent over the amount carried by the old St. Lawrence canals in 1958.

The Canadian and United States seaway authorities said Friday preliminary traffic statistics show that 20,100,000 tons of cargo were moved through the seaway last year. This was a gain of 8,300,000 tons over the 11,800,000 tons moved in 1958.

The upbound movement increased by 6,150,000 tons or by 132 per cent and the downbound by 2,180,000 tons or 31 per cent. Bulk cargo formed 91 per cent of the total movement.

The St. Lawrence Seaway authority said the figures are subject to revision when all cargo returns have been processed.

Alcan Will Reopen
Quebec Pot Rooms

ARVIDA, Que. (CP) — Aluminum Company of Canada announced Friday it will reopen two pot rooms at its works here before the end of the month and rehire some 400 men laid off when market conditions were more depressed.

At nearby Isle Maligne Friday the company also announced it will reopen all its pot rooms there in the next few weeks. Five were involved and about 150 men were to be rehired.

Seattle-Victoria
'Over the Pole'

There was no thrill, just chill. Heating unit aboard TCA flight 146 from Seattle to Victoria broke down Friday night about 10 minutes out from the U.S. city.

It was the captain's decision whether to turn back or carry on. He chose the latter. Cabin temperature dropped to around 50 degrees during the 35-minute flight. Outside it was about 20 degrees.

The flight was made at the lowest allowable level, 5,000 feet.

There were only four passengers aboard.

HARBOR JAMMED

VANCOUVER — Vancouver harbor was jammed beyond capacity Thursday as 32 ships filled all available berths and another seven waited to get in. An industry spokesman said 1,500 men were loading Thursday but 750 more were needed. However, untrained unemployed men could not ease the situation as men trained in the handling of dock machinery were needed, he said.

with all six listed declining. In the mining section copper were the strongest during the week.

Investors have been keeping an eye on this base metal as copper strikes continue in the U.S. and shortages are becoming a problem.

The National Energy Board hearings on gas export proposals which got under way at Ottawa this week have kept western oils from showing any strong increases but on index at Toronto they were ahead more than a point.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

U.S. Economy

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP) — United States business was catapulted full speed into the anticipated boom of 1960 by this week's steel strike settlement.

The business world, eager to be about the pleasant task of trying to make lavish 1960 predictions come true, had been straining at the leash imposed by the uncertainties of the steel dispute.

Industrial leaders greeted the settlement with almost unanimous expressions of belief that it assured a year of unparalleled prosperity in nearly every field.

Some tempered their enthusiasm with sober warnings that the new steel contract is inflationary and surely will bring higher prices.

The steel industry, itself, said there would be no price increase for the time being.

Some producers of cotton fabrics for automobile interiors responded to the settlement by raising prices for second-quarter shipments. A carpet industry leader said the settlement makes higher carpet prices likely for fall.

AUTO LINES HUM

With worries about steel supplies ended, the automobile industry set out to build 700,000 cars this month—a record. Operations are humming on a double-shift, six-day basis. Estimated output this week was 162,000.

The appliance industry, equally relieved, forecast sale of 16,000,000 major home appliance units this year, a gain of $275,000, or about 10 per cent, over 1959.

Steel production this week was estimated at 2,707,000 tons, down slightly from last week's 2,726,000 but well above the 2,085,000 a year ago.

Empire Mills
Plant Ready
By Next Year

VANCOUVER (CP) — President B. J. Keely of Empire Mills Ltd., said Friday a new $3,000,000 plywood mill that will employ about 400 should be in operation at Squamish, 40 miles north of here, by next year.

He said production of the mill, construction of which was made possible by the government's decision this week to allow the company to retain a tree farm licence in the area first granted in 1954, will be aimed at the Canadian and British markets.

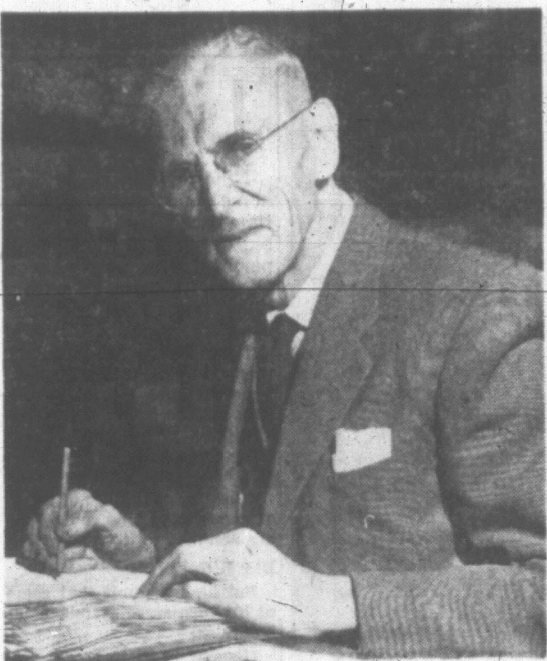

Mr. Keely said there is no present or future plans to sell out Empire Mills for a quick profit.

He added the company will not pass into U.S. control when it merges with Mount Baker Plywood Ltd. The merged company would be 75 per cent Canadian controlled and about 40 per cent of common shares would be made available to the public.

R.C. Truck Loggers Association, representing about 170 large and small companies, has protested the government's decision on the licence to Lands and Forests Minister Williston.

Canadian Designs
New Teleprinter

MONTREAL (CP) — Westrex Corporation, of Los Angeles, has bought world-wide marketing rights to a teleprinter designed by a Montreal engineer. The machine was designed by Ronald G. Griffith, vice-president and chief engineer of Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation. Mr. Griffith said the teleprinter is lighter, more compact and easier to maintain than present teleprinters.

GREATEST TASK OF 60's

Trouble-Free Car
Aim of Engineers

By JACK VANDENBERG

DETROIT (UPI) — Automotive engineers will concentrate on making cars more and more trouble-free in the next decade, the new president of the Society of Automotive Engineers has predicted.

Harry E. Chesebrough, general manager of the Plymouth-Dodge Soto-Valliant division of Chrysler Corp., will be installed as the new head of the SAE at its annual meeting next week.

He celebrated in advance by describing the role the SAE played in bringing about new developments in autos and made a few predictions at the same time.

"There'll be a lot of new developments in the industry in the next decade, particularly in making driving easier, more comfortable and more economical," Chesebrough said. "But the major emphasis will be on giving the motorist a car he doesn't have to worry about, one that won't need repairs."

The greatest task of the auto engineer in the decade of the 1960's was to keep a car running, he said. In the 50's a car's operating qualities, established, switched to refinements, more comfort, convenience, performance and safety. "The compact cars we are seeing today are the result of that challenge."

"In the 1960's the auto engineer is going to have to do more, faster," he said. "Greater density of traffic and greater desire for more for less pose a real challenge to us in the decade ahead."

"The SAE will help us meet that challenge."

ESTABLISHMENT of a public relations department for Canada Safeway's company-wide operations was announced Friday by W. J. Kraft, Vancouver division manager. J. P. "Jack" Leaney, left, has been named manager of public and industrial relations for Canada, counselling Safeway's four retail divisions which operate 195 stores in the five western provinces. Assisting him will be V. L. "Vic" Pinchin. He was named branch manager of industrial relations for the Winnipeg and Saskatchewan divisions.

NBC TO DROP PROGRAM

Friday Night Fights On Another Network?

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Friday night fights will be dropped by the National Broadcasting Company after next September and there were indications today the sponsors may try to put the bouts on another network.

President Vincent C. Ziegler of the Gillette Safety Razor Company, which sponsors the Friday night fights, said his company has been "informally" advised by the NBC that it "does not want to carry the Friday fights on their network after next September."

Ziegler said his company believes the Friday night fights, on the air since television's earliest days, still appeal to a "large segment of the television audience."

"In light of our present knowledge therefore," he added, "we would be most reluctant to see the end of this program."

He said the reasons behind NBC's decision "are not entirely clear to us but we, of course, recognize that they have problems at the time peculiar to the broadcasting industry which may well be a factor in their decision."

Herb Can't Visit U.S. This Year

MELBOURNE (AP)—Herb Elliott of Australia, holder of the world record mile, today was refused permission by the Victorian Amateur Athletic Association to accept invitations to compete in the United States this year.

U.S. promoters wanted Elliott to compete at indoor meetings this month against Swedish star Dan Waern.

The Victorian association is known to be against granting permission to runners to visit the U.S. because it feels it gets nothing in the way of return tours by American athletes. Elliott's coach, Percy Cerutti, said: "It is disgraceful that a free man can't go where he likes when he likes."

Monti Leads Open Parade

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Eric Monti shot a five-under-par 66 Friday to lead the parade in the first round of the $37,500 Los Angeles Open golf tournament.

The Los Angeles golf instructor toured the 7,000-yard Rancho golf course, with its par of 33-36-71, in 32-34-66 for a one-stroke margin over Jimmy Clark of Los Angeles, who posted a 34-33-67.

Tied at 68 were veteran Johnny Balla; ex-PGA champion Walter Burkemo; former National Open champion Jack Fleck; Howie Johnson; Jim Ferree and Doug Sanders. Moe Norman of Toronto and nine other golfers finished in a tie for 16th position at 70.

The young players of today are more interested in their girl friends than in drinking at the club bar after a game.

Twenty-five per cent have on for a couple of hours over one pint of beer and then go home.

Reds Gain Draw On Baliuk's Goal

By Canadian Press

Springfield Indians trailed through the first period, then beat Cleveland Barons 3-2 Friday night to strengthen their hold on the American Hockey League leadership.

Rochester Americans, in second place, rallied from an early 2-0 deficit at Providence and played to a 3-3 overtime tie against the Reds in the second game of the night.

At Cleveland the league's top scorer, Floyd Smith, slugged in the winning goal at 8:50 of the third period.

Fred Glover's 15th goal of the season, which brought him within three of the all-time league record of 319 for an AHL career, put the Barons ahead 1-0 in the first period.

Goals by Dennis Olson and Bruce Cline put the Indians ahead in the second but Bill Dineen tied it early in the third, setting the stage for Smith's tiebreaker.

At Providence, goals by Paul Larivee and Larry Hillman in the first 10 minutes gave the Reds a 2-0 first-period advantage. But the Americans tied it 2-2 on second-period tallies by Stan Smrke and Dave Creighton.

Rochester then went ahead on Bill Saunders' goal at 5:36 in the final period but the Reds tied it at 11:57 as Stan Baliuk fired into the left corner.

The Reds' goal by Rochester 6-3 in the overtime, sudden-death overtime but goalie Ed Chadwick saved the Americans with two fine stops on Lorne Davis and Dan Poliziani.

PINTS AT CLUB BAR

This information was revealed by a four-man committee of the famous Harlequins rugby club, which delved into the habits of its "modern" members.

The findings also were of interest to club secretaries facing declining bar receipts and less sociable Saturday evenings.

Ken Smith, a Rosslyn Park club official, said: "Not only do the modern players drink less, but very rarely nowadays do you see a rugby player tight. In my younger days that was more or less the aim on Saturday nights."

All members of the Victoria Cougar Booster Club are asked to attend the club's regular meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at 1155 Fairfield Road.

Isa also set a world record for the 400 meters. Her time was 1:8 seconds below the standard approved by the International Swimming Federation for the distance.

Roy Wants It Rough

VANCOUVER (CP)—Roy McBride, team manager of Spokane Comets, and Coley Hall, general manager of Vancouver Canucks, have called for a relaxation of refereeing in the Western Hockey League.

McBride, bitter about the officiating during Friday night's game which his last place Comets lost 7-2 to league-leading Vancouver at Vancouver, teed off on the subject in a between-periods radio interview.

Sitting beside the Spokane mentor as he criticized the officials was league president Al Leader, also a guest on the show.

McBride said he didn't like the calls on three first-period penalties given his team. All three resulted in Vancouver goals.

Leader said later McBride had left him self open to a possible fine, but would not comment further.

McBride later repeated his remarks on a second radio show and added that the fans came out to see hard, rough hockey and officials should relax the rules to allow the fans to get what they want. He said he would bring the subject up at the next league meeting.

Hall seconded McBride's plea for an easing of the rules. He added that if McBride didn't bring up the subject at league annual meeting, scheduled for Edmonton next Monday, he would.

However, the veteran Vancouver manager made no comment about officiating of Friday's game.

Comet Life Easier If They Scalp Cats

With manager Roy McBride on the warpath, Spokane Comets should be determined to do a bit of scalping when they tackle Victoria Cougars at Memorial Arena tonight.

McBride started to crack a whip over his Comets after they dropped a 6-3 Western Hockey League verdict to the Cougars Wednesday, stating that several were out of condition and suggesting that "four or five" players would have their pay cheques trimmed if they didn't show some quick improvement.

Roy was sailing on a different tack at Vancouver Friday night while watching the Comets suffer from penalties and Hank Bassen's sharp netminding. Canucks scored three first-period goals while Spokane players were sitting out penalties and Bassen blocked 13 shots in that session and 30 during the game as the league leaders hammered out a 7-2 victory.

AL HEARD ALL
McBride didn't like the penalty calls and in a between-periods radio interview, bitterly criticized the refereeing. A guest on the same program was WHL president Al Leader, who indicated McBride had left himself open for a possible fine.

All of which suggests that the Spokane boss won't be in a mellow mood tonight and will have the whip snapping over the Comets, who could make life more pleasant by clipping the Cats.

Spokane is in a position to knock the Cougars out of third place. Edmonton Flyers, hottest club in the loop with nine victories in 11 games, are only a point behind Victoria and could grab the third spot with a combination of a win over Calgary tonight and a Cougar defeat.

Flyers stepped closer to the Cats by holding off a late Calgary surge and nipping the Stampeders 4-3 Friday night and Seattle Totems moved three points ahead of Victoria with a comeback 3-2 win at Winnipeg.

Dave Duke led Canucks with two goals, Sandy Hucl, Orland Kurtenbach, Bruce Carmichael, Ralph Keller and Ray Cyr scored the others.

Alex Kuzma scored both Spokane goals, one late in the first period and the other midway in the third.

WARRIORS LOSE LEAD
Guyle Fielder, Totems' bread-and-butter puck carrier throughout the game, and line mate Jim Powers scored goals in quick succession in the last period to erase a 2-1 Winnipeg lead and give Seattle its win.

Marc Boileau got the other Seattle marker after only 13 seconds of play in the opening period.

Defenceman Bill Folk and lanky Gord Rossall scored for Warriors 1-0, 0-0 home fans looked on.

At Edmonton 4,200 fans saw Flyers jump into a 4-1 lead in the first two periods and then stave off a last-period surge by Stampeders.

Gene Achymichuk tallied twice for Flyers with other Edmonton goals coming from defenceman Hugh Coffin and forward Warren Hynes.

Calgary scorers were veterans Sid Finney and Jack McLeod and Jim Brown.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Welterweight Stan Harrington of Hawaii, who wept in the ring Friday night when he lost a very unpopular decision in his TV debut at New York will get a return shot at Mexican Gaspar Ortega in mid-February or early March.

"The managers of Ortega and Harrington have agreed to the re-match," said matchmaker Teddy Brenner today. "They've accepted terms, and the date probably will be Feb. 12 or 19, or March 4."

Tad Kawamura, manager of Harrington said he wouldn't file a protest with the commission despite the five-minute demonstration of protest by the 2,500 fans in Madison Square Garden, and the poll of 14 ringside sports writers that showed nine had Harrington winning. Four had Ortega and one called it even.

"I'm sure a protest could not get the decision changed," Kawamura declared; "but I am demanding that Ortega carry out the agreement for a match we've made this morning."

STRONG FINISH
Lanky Ortega, known as the "Unlucky Indian" because he had lost so many close decisions in his career of 70 previous bouts, declared "I'm so happy about finally winning a close one, I'll fight Harrington again—or anybody else."

Ortega, favored at 2-1 but outclassed in the first half of the 10-rounder, came from behind with a strong finish to win the unanimous decision.

Harrington was so amazed and heartbroken when the decision was announced, he wept in his corner, and pilot Kawamura dried the fighter's eyes with a towel.

PRIVILEGES CANCELLED . . . SAYS POST OFFICE

Be Warned, Bettors!

OTTAWA (CP)—A post office official said today that repeat offenders who use the mails to bet on British soccer pools or sweepstakes may have their mailing privileges cancelled.

B. J. Farrel, director of the administrative branch, said first offenders using the mails for participating in pools or sweepstakes—defined as lotteries and illegal under the Canadian Criminal Code—are given a warning.

"If they persevere and we find out about it, we cancel mailing privileges," he said.

When letters come in for an overseas address known by the post office as a receiver of pool or sweepstakes money it is returned to the sender marked "non-transmissible."

If there is no return address on the outside of the envelope the post office may, under powers of the Post Office Act, open the letter to see if a return address is inside.

If this case money contained is returned but the post office destroys any pool or sweepstakes tickets.

Mr. Farrel said hundreds of Canadians have lost mailing privileges for repeatedly using the mails for these purposes. This means that the offender gets no mail delivered to his home.

Anyone losing privileges and wishing to have them restored must file a sworn declaration not to use the mails illegally in the future, Mr. Farrel said.

Q—What is the best way to keep phonograph records from wearing out prematurely?

A—Wash them regularly in lukewarm—never hot—water and detergent—not soap. The life of a clean record will be extended by about seven times over that of a dusty one.

Q—After mosaic tile is laid in a table top, how long must the mastic set before grout is spread?

A—One day.

Simple Towel Rack

Two pieces of fir plywood, four dowels and a bit of imagination can solve the towel rack problem in your house.

As with other items around the home, once the pattern of this rack is established, several can be cut out at the same time and used as gifts for Christmas or birthdays.

First step is to draw the end pieces on 1/2" fir plywood. This thickness is stiff enough to eliminate other framing. As fir plywood marked PMBC Exterior is made with a completely waterproof glue, moisture in the bathroom can never affect it.

After the ends have been sanded to a graceful curve, holes are drilled and 1/2" dowels inserted. These will give the rack all the stiffness it requires.

The assembled rack is then sanded and given several coats of varnish, if you wish to retain the natural wood tones. Or it can be undercoated and painted with enamel to complement the other decals and fixtures.

A pair of gay decals would add color to the finished rack—perhaps they could match the colors already used in the window drapes, bath mat or shower curtains.

The rack can be either toenailed into the wall studs, or a piece of 1"x2", nailed across the back of the rack, can be used to take the screws to attach the rack to the wall.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Study seed and plant catalogs for things you wish to grow this year, and don't forget the "something new" to add interest.

The Christmas evergreen decorations can be thrust into the soil around some early flowering bulbs, such as the dwarf iris, to protect them from northerly wind. Helleborus niger, the Christmas rose, also appreciates receiving protection from winter wind. Greenhouse glass can be wiped down inside daily with a dry cloth. You'll be surprised at the increase of light admitted.

Dig a root of rhubarb for forcing indoors. Put into a box of humusy soil, place in a dark warm spot and syringe occasionally with tepid water.

Planting of trees and shrubs (fruit and ornamental) may be continued whenever soil is not frozen or waterlogged.

Check all plants and tubers being stored for winter. If dahlias seem too dry, place them in damp sand or peat moss. Remove anything showing signs of storage rot.

Bait for slugs in greenhouse if nights are mild, and watch for greenfly and whitefly on calla, cineraria, regal pelargonium and even on freesia. Spray with nicotine sulphate according to printed directions on label.

Sow lettuce (New York Head or All Year Round) indoors. Planted outdoors in early April, it will heart in May. Sow also onion seed indoors for early ripening outdoors in time for early fall shows.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. You often mention forcing rhubarb indoors. Will you please give details? J.P.E., Sidney, B.C.

A. First, select a place which has a more or less steady temperature of 60° F. Darkness must be provided by use of black cloth, black paper or a box at least two feet in depth.

Dig the rhubarb root, and if possible, leave on the ground outdoors for a few days to receive frost. Then plant into a large pot, or a box, covering the crowns with two inches of good soil. Water well to settle the soil around the roots.

Put the covers in place to exclude light, and inspect once or twice a week, adding tepid water to prevent the soil and atmosphere around the plant from drying.

Some gardeners who have a basement with a section of exposed soil, dig a bed there for forcing rhubarb with excellent results. Furnace heat will usually keep the air about 60 deg. or better.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Too Lazy to Plan Garden? Here's What Can Go Wrong

By JACK BEASTALL

At this time of year most gardening columns are devoted to the planning of the garden for the ensuing season. This is the pattern I have followed for the last decade.

You know the general idea. Draw a rough plan of the garden and mark in the vegetable rows and the flowering plants together with the target dates for sowing, planting and gathering.

The reason for doing this is to ensure utilizing every bit of space to the best advantage, to give a steady supply of vegetables suited to the family's needs without glut and famines, and to guarantee an adequate display of flowers from early spring until late fall.

Of course, the weather may upset the entire schedule, but it remains a fact that a planned garden gives better results and entails less work and worry than a haphazard hit-or-miss garden.

This year I am not going to recommend that you spend your evenings by the fireside with paper, pencil and seed catalogs, puzzling over where this, that and the other should be put.

"WORK" Why? Because so many gardeners have told me that when the time comes for them to plan in advance every move in the garden, and then have to do things according to a schedule, they will consider gardening as "work" and not a hobby, and quit it altogether.

And that is about the worst thing that could happen to anyone.

Instead of telling about how you should plan your garden, I am going to outline a few things that could happen in an unplanned garden.

A plan is not necessary providing you have an excellent memory, and are fully familiar with the plants you wish to grow, your local weather, and the conditions common to your specific plot of ground.

Most unplanned gardens do quite well excepting for one or two vegetables which are likely to give a little trouble during the season.

Early lettuce, for example, is liable to be in the shadow of early peas, and therefore be slow to head-up, and lack the sweetness and crispness of plants grown in the spring sunshine.

On the other hand, later sowings of lettuce may find themselves in full sun. In June and July, when they are most wanted for salads, they will be producing magnificent flower spikes instead of tight round heads.

The same thing can happen to spinach. Early sowings which are shaded will be tough and stringy, and later sowings in full sun will bolt to seed. Beetroot likes full sun but not too much water. Should they happen to be next to a row of beans or peas which need water every day, the roots are not going to be so enjoyable as they would be in a drier spot with side dressings of agricultural salt.

Onions can become very difficult to handle in an unplanned garden. The normal season finds them fully sized and ready for ripening around mid-July, and from then on must be kept dry.

If onions receive any moisture after sizing-up, either from rain or sprinkler, they again start into growth and produce bulbs with bulges, and green shoots in the neck, the kind a show judge wishes he could throw out and the housewife has to use before Christmas.

When no plan is being followed, onions often end up next to the July sowings of vegetables which need lots of water to bring them along for fall use, so that the onion crop is lost as far as winter storage is concerned.

The gardener with a good memory will know exactly where he used benzene-hexachloride to combat carrot rust fly. This material, in short BHC, remains in the soil for two seasons at least and will taint any root crops grown in the treated area.

SPOIL FLAVOR Working with a poor memory, and no plan, one could easily sow beetroot, carrot, parsnip, salsify, potato, turnip, kohlrabi, and so forth, in spots where BHC had been applied, then be unable to use them because of the flavor.

Crops in full growth require large amounts of water, while those which are maturing or ripening need very little or none at all.

A Pioneer of 'College' Gets Glimpse at Future of 'University'

Bridging the years since 1903, when she taught the first tiny class at Victoria College, Mrs. Henry Esson Young (left) looks wistfully into the future as she hears Dr. Harry Hickman, present principal, discussing the college's new status as a university. Mrs. Young, whose husband was an early minister of education in B.C., graduated from McGill University in 1895 and was first president of the University Women's Club. She was guest of honor at a dinner marking the start of Victoria University Building Fund Friday night and heard Premier Bennett pay tribute to her and her husband as

"great pioneers of education in British Columbia." UBC president Norman MacKenzie and campaign chairman R. B. Wilson outlined plans for the future development of Victoria University.

'UNDERSTANDING'... CAN BE OUR SALVATION

Barriers of Mind and Soul Big Challenge of Education

The universities and colleges of the English-speaking world are engaged in a constant battle against the barriers of misunderstanding, hatred, jealousy, intolerance and injustice, Dr. George Edward Hall, president of the University of Western Ontario, said here Friday night.

"These barriers are in the minds and souls of men," Dr. Hall told a dinner marking the start of the Victoria University building fund drive.

He said the universities and colleges, through their teaching to millions of students, were fighting the barriers of prejudice with "all of their mental and spiritual resources."

"Our task is the more difficult as we see that science has today, just as a hundred years ago, become the vanguard of society."

"Advances in the social sciences and in the humanities, which should have prepared us as individuals and as nations for life in this scientific age, were found wanting.

"Fortunately, greater effort is now being made and the impact will soon be felt. Only through knowledge and the application of that knowledge by the leaders of our societies can the problems associated with human endeavor and human welfare be resolved.

"An understanding of people and of human relations can be our salvation."

Dr. Hall said universities and colleges are becoming even more vital forces in the study and actual practice of everyday living.

DANGERS RECOGNIZED

"And, even with its limited financial resources, there are few if any universities anywhere which carry to its vast community the opportunities for knowledge, and an insight into the challenges of society, as does the University of British Columbia."

Dr. Hall said UBC recognized that the degeneration of world conditions was caused by prejudice, ignorance, intolerance, lack of moral discipline, disregard for the rights of others, social inequalities, hunger, low living standards and loss of faith.

"And your University is trying to do something about it."

He said president Norman MacKenzie and his colleagues recognized that the threat of atomic warfare "accentuated these festering thorns in the human flesh" and had focused attention on the lack of agreement to ultimate human objectives.

WISER DEVELOPMENT

"They know, too, that we all must recognize, understand, study and offer positive solutions to revive man's faith in himself."

Referring specifically to the establishment of a university in Victoria, Dr. Hall said:

"I believe it is academically sounder and financially wiser to develop existing universities and colleges than it is to establish and operate numbers of new institutions throughout a province."

"HEARTY" wishes for a laydown slam hand like this when the Vic-Van-Isle Kinettes bridge tournament opens Jan. 25 are entertained by Mrs. Pamela Shemilt, chairman of the tournament committee, and Mrs. Elda Mendels. NEW INDUSTRY—'ALE-ING'

U.K.'s Bass Bottled Here

A new industry—bottling and distributing British ales—is planned for Victoria.

Brian H. Roberts, general manager of Growers' Wine Co., 3948 Quadra, said today his company has completed arrangements to import, bottle and distribute Bass Ale, one of the leading British beverages.

Growers' Wine is currently negotiating with other British companies to handle their products here.

Mr. Roberts said the bottling would entail a new plant "probably adjacent" to the Quadra winery.

The plant would provide steady employment for 10 to 15 persons, he said.

British ales will be shipped to Victoria in heavily-insulated stainless steel tanks. Growers' Wine is studying the possibility of using the tanks to ship concentrated apple juice from the Okanagan back to the Old Country.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Please tell me about the World Bank? B.M.

A. Actual name is the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. Articles of agreement were drawn up by 44 nations at the UN monetary conference in 1944. Sixty-nine countries are now members. Bank purpose is to assist in reconstruction and development of member countries by facilitating capital investment for productive purposes, thus promoting long-range growth of international trade and improvement of living standards; to promote participation in loans and investments made by private investors, and to make loans for productive purposes when private capital is not available on reasonable terms. Headquarters is in Washington, D.C., and European headquarters in Paris.

Unemployment Falls Below Past Few Years

Unemployment in Greater Victoria is down compared with the same period during the last several years, a National Employment Service official said Friday.

The figure is 329 below the same date in 1959.

Factors contributing to the present unemployment situation are: a shortage of shingle and sawmills; logging slowdown due to weather; low level of shipyard employment construction industry slowdown.

There are now 3,697 men and 1,513 women registered for work, 90 men and 61 women more than a week ago.

'Avoid the Rush' Voting Supported

A campaign for earlier municipal elections—to avoid the Christmas rush—was backed today by Greater Victoria's three reeves.

Reeves George Chatterton of Saanich, George Murdoch of Oak Bay and A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt expressed strong support for the move.

They indicated their councils will support a ballot by mail issued by the Union of B.C. Municipalities to authorize a request for amendment of the Municipal Act at the coming session.

CITY PARKING LOT TO OPEN ON THURSDAY

First off-street parking lot in the city's downtown plan goes into operation officially Thursday.

Some 113 metered spaces will be available on the Cormorant Street lot, site of the demolished public market building.

City engineer James Garnett told public works committee Friday that the meter rate will be five cents a half hour with a maximum of three hours time on each meter.

"No pennies will be accepted by the meters, it'll be all nickels or dimes," he said.

Entrance to the lot is on Cormorant. Exit is on Fisgard. City council provided $17,500 for demolition of the building and conversion of the site into a parking lot.

Toronto Music Awards Given In City Tonight

A presentation of diplomas and awards granted by the Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto, will be held tonight with Dr. Boyd Neel, CBE, BA, officiating.

Sponsor of the affair which will be held at the Art Gallery, is the Victoria Chapter of the Royal Conservatory Alumni.

A program of piano, violin and speech arts selections will be given by the diploma and award winners.

MONTE ROBERTS

News Item: A California company plans to offer a doggy meal in frozen TV dinner form. It will package a mixture of beef, spices, and charcoal in aluminum trays that can be easily heated in the oven.

For a dog's-eye view of this new type of food, I dashed out to darkest Spooke to interview the female-type doggie who used to live at our house, namely Julia Boots Streak.

(Her name used to be Judy Boots Streak, and the reason for the change is strictly a local joke, so don't bother trying to figure it out.)

"Judy," I said, "er, I beg pardon, Julia, what do you think of TV dinners for dogs?"

"Oh, I say, really, now," Julia replied, "I am not the type of doggie which looks down her nose at her bed and bone no matter what form they take as long as they are free."

"But," said Julia, "if I had my druthers, I'd druther have my food as ever is rather than as ever used to be by which I mean I do not like the idea of warmed over food I like my food piping hot fresh and prepared on the instant if you know what I mean."

"Nevertheless," I said to Judy—excuse it, Julia—"doesn't a package of beef, spices, and charcoal appeal to you?"

Julia Boots Streak gave this matter a few moments of thought, while she ran her tongue thoughtfully over her chops and fastened her dark broken eyes on the far horizon.

"Hmmm," she said, "Beef. Yes. Spices. Yes. Charcoal. Maybe."

"All in all," said this female-type doggie, "it fails to sound unappetizing."

"However," she continued, "one thing worries me. If all us doggies are to be fed TV-type dinners, does this mean we have to watch TV?"

"Perish forbid," I said.

"Perish, indeed, forbid," said Julia Boots Streak.

ARTHRITIS VICTIMS ON THE WRONG TRACK

'Mail Order Cures' Just Useless

By TONY DICKASON

The situation is sad. Persons seeking help for arthritis—there are many variations of the disease—often fail to go about it the right way.

Pills and potions, says Mary Pack, executive director of the B.C. division, Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, are generally useless.

She made her statement here Friday during a tour of the province's cities and towns where C.A.R.S. services are available.

Many of the "quack" remedies have no basis of a cure whatsoever, she said. Others have an effective aspirin base but are many times more expensive.

While issuing this warning to sufferers from the cruel disease, she pointed out improvement is recorded in 86 per cent of patients treated under age

40; 80 per cent in the 40 to 64 age group, and 73 per cent in the "over 64" group.

This is under medical treatment—no mail-order "cures."

During the first 11 months last year, 189 patients were treated at the St. Joseph's Hospital clinic, involving 2,344 visits. Of these, 1,852 were on hospital premises and the remainder through the mobile clinic.

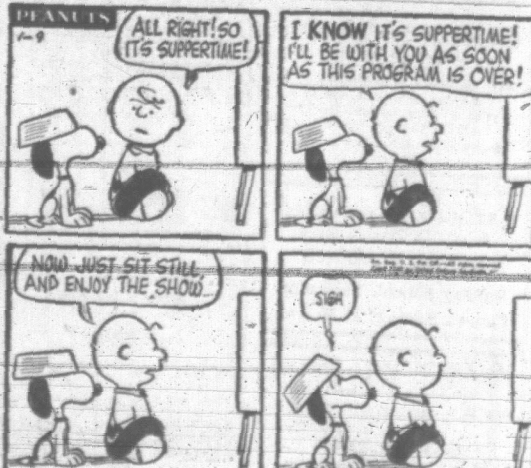

"One in 20 persons in Greater

Victoria has arthritis," she said.

President of the Victoria unit is Douglas Tuck, and secretary is Mrs. Ernest Evans.

There is no "cure" for arthritis, but the disease can be arrested or given a throw-back. This is accomplished by medically prescribed rest, heat, therapy and medication.

C.A.R.S. in Victoria is a Community Chest agency, and expenditures this year, 1960, are expected to be close to $14,500.

India Applying Brakes On Mounting Population

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—The Indian government is planning a far-reaching campaign to check the rapid increase in population, which is absorbing a large part of the benefits of economic development.

Health officials here disclosed that in the three-year plan it is planned to spend 20,000,000 rupees (about $40,000,000), or four times the outlay in the current second plan, on family planning programs.

Surveys have shown that the majority of Indians are amenable to family planning, and that religious opposition is limited. The main problems are to inform the country's 415,000,000 people, most of whom are illiterate and live in villages difficult to reach, and to produce an effective contraceptive which is cheap and easy to use.

BABY BOOM
Every day about 28,000 Indian babies are born. The population is increasing at the rate of nearly 8,000,000 a year and in five or six years will pass the 450,000,000 mark which census commissioner R. A. Gopala has estimated as the maximum population which the country can maintain.

Food production, although it has increased in the last 10 years, has not kept pace with the increase in population, and up to 3,000,000 tons of food grain have to be imported each year, with a dangerous drain on foreign exchange resources. Family planning has been an integral part of the five-year plans launched since 1951, but it has taken time to build up this organization, initiate research and train field workers. Nearly 1,000 clinics have been opened and some 1,400 maternity and child health centres are giving family planning advice.

Inducements are being offered in many areas for men and women who have had at least three children to be sterilized. The consent of both husband and wife is necessary and the operation is decided on upon the merits of each case. In the last three years, 23,000 people have been sterilized.

EDUCATED CLASS
An interesting sidelight is the fact that nearly half of them have come from the southern state of Kerala, which has the highest educational standard in India. In the three-five-year plan to be launched in 1961 it is planned to open 8,000 clinics in rural areas and 35,000 in towns and cities.

Prime Minister Nehru is fully behind the family planning campaign. But he emphasizes that this alone is no answer to India's problems.

SERMON at Mattins at Christ Church Cathedral Sunday will be preached by Rt. Rev. G. R. Calvert, Bishop of Calgary, formerly dean and rector here. The sermon at evensong will be preached by the dean, Very Rev. Brian Whitlow.

Evangelism Conference At Parksville

The B.C. Conference of the United Church of Canada will hold its first annual conference on evangelism at the Island Hall Hotel, Parksville, starting Wednesday and ending Sunday, Jan. 17.

The conference will be led by Dr. Clark J. Wood and Dr. S. Raynor Smith of the Methodist Church of Washington. Separate sessions will be conducted during the mid-week for the clergy, and over the weekend for the laity. Attendance at the latter session will be open to both men and women.

Objectives of the conference include enlarging working knowledge of the Christian faith; transforming faith and belief into practice; the practical program of evangelism for laymen, including the effective influence of the local church on the community at large.

Devotional leadership of the conference will be in charge of Rev. Bert Mather, assistant secretary of the board of evangelism and social service at Saskatoon.

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES $22,718 Spent On Welfare Work

Welfare work to the value of $22,718 was carried out during 1959 by the Seventh Day Adventist Church in Victoria. It was reported at the annual meeting.

Well-known city artist Edward Goodall will be guest speaker at a meeting of St. Mary's Oak Bay Men's Guild in the Parish Hall, Yale Street, Thursday at 8 p.m.

Mr. Goodall will show colored slides of climbing and skiing in the Canadian Rockies.

Sunday will be family day at Metropolitan United Church, with children attending the morning service with their parents before going to their Sunday school class rooms.

The junior choir will sing at the morning service. Dr. F. E. H. James will preach on "Authority in Religion."

LOCAL BRIEFS
The B.C. registrar of land titles, Victor DiCastri, will return as guest speaker at a luncheon meeting of the Real Estate Board of Victoria next Wednesday at noon in the Empress Hotel, to continue a speech he started at an earlier luncheon on the subject, "Contracts for the Sale of Land." It will cover such topics as deeds of land, first and second mortgages, agreements for sale, release of mortgages, rights of way and easements. There will be a question period.

A revision of the list of British Columbia justices of the peace show there are now 300 active in the province. Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Thursday. The list had not been revised since 1923 and had contained some 600 names.

January meeting of the Macaulay School PTA will be held in the school auditorium next Tuesday at 8 p.m. Program for the evening will be "Teaching Arithmetic Today," by members of the teaching staff.

PILGRIMAGE ON WAY
The blind and the maimed will travel hundreds of miles to Triveni Sangham hoping the holy rivers will restore them to health.

One of the most spectacular sights in Triveni Sangham will be the great gathering of holy men from all over the country. About 50,000 are expected. Many of the holy men will be from the snowbound Himalayan heights where they live. They started their journeys weeks back on foot. No good Sadhu will travel by train or bus.

The Centennial Chapter of the Eastern Star will attend evening service of the First United Church, when Rev. A. I. Higgins will preach the first of a series of sermons on the Lord's Prayer.

Friendship Night, originally planned for Sunday, will be held Jan. 17.

The first in a series on Bible stories reconsidered will be preached by Very Rev. J. Lewis W. McLean at the morning service at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

His topic will be, "The Flood."

Services at all Christian Science churches Sunday will emphasize the great example of love and sacrifice given by Christ, and the good which results from following this example in daily life.

MAO 'DEMI-GOD' Confucius On Way Out In China

TOKYO (AP)—Mao Tse-tung has become a demi-god, but the stock of Confucius and other ancient sages has crashed in Communist China, a Japanese correspondent just back from Peking reports.

Tatsuo Marukawa writes in the current issue of the Asahi Weekly that many Confucian tabernacles have been turned into workers' clubs, mess halls and assembly places.

"Many statues of Confucius are collecting dust, because Confucius is no longer a revered sage but a man who helped ancient emperors to consolidate their feudal subjugation of the people," Marukawa reports.

Christianity is also faring badly, although the Chinese constitution promises freedom of faith. All Christian churches are deserted.

But Mao, the Communist party chairman, is revered as the greatest man in history, and his portraits are displayed everywhere, Marukawa says.

Church of England Claims Conversions
LONDON (Reuters)—The Church of England received 10,440 new members from the Roman Catholic Church and 33,884 from other denominations during the three years 1954, 1955 and 1956, according to the church's official year book published today.

While official statistics of the Roman Catholic Church report 12,506 conversions a year in England, the Church of England estimated that only 807 were former Anglicans.

Color Lines In Cemetery Under Probe
VANCOUVER (CP)—The Public Utilities Commission says it is investigating the question of racial discrimination in cemeteries.
It said this in confirming that persons of Asian and African origin must be buried in special plots at Ocean View Cemetery here.
The Steelworkers Union had protested the practice but the PUC said in a letter to the Vancouver Labor Council that the cemetery's regulations say the persons of African and Asian origin must be buried in areas "set apart for those purposes."

10 Million at 'Holy Dip'
BOMBAY (CP)—Preparations are being completed at Allahabad, in Uttar Pradesh State, for one of the largest gatherings of religious pilgrims in modern times.
Nearly 10,000,000 people are expected to flock to a spot called Triveni Sangham—"confluence of three sacred rivers"—for a holy dip into the icy waters. The ceremonies, beginning in mid-January, will last several days.
The centuries-old festival is called Kumbh Mela, or "fair of the heavenly pot." According to Hindu legend, God sprinkles a heavenly elixir at Triveni Sangham during the festival. A bath on the occasion is said to purify the soul and confer immortality on the bather.
Taking advantage of the huge throngs, the central and state governments have arranged five-year plan exhibitions to portray India's progress in various spheres. Even as the pilgrim has his sacred dip, giant posters will look down on him carrying such slogans as "India marches ahead—towards democratic socialism" and "invest in small savings."
To prevent the outbreak of epidemics, every pilgrim must be vaccinated against cholera and smallpox.

Evangelism Conference At Parksville

The B.C. Conference of the United Church of Canada will hold its first annual conference on evangelism at the Island Hall Hotel, Parksville, starting Wednesday and ending Sunday, Jan. 17.

The conference will be led by Dr. Clark J. Wood and Dr. S. Raynor Smith of the Methodist Church of Washington. Separate sessions will be conducted during the mid-week for the clergy, and over the weekend for the laity. Attendance at the latter session will be open to both men and women.

Objectives of the conference include enlarging working knowledge of the Christian faith; transforming faith and belief into practice; the practical program of evangelism for laymen, including the effective influence of the local church on the community at large.

Devotional leadership of the conference will be in charge of Rev. Bert Mather, assistant secretary of the board of evangelism and social service at Saskatoon.

The excitement of the engagement, planning for a wedding, then the big day, are all memories that they will carry all through their lives. Several wedding couples on this page are now making their homes in other cities, where they are either studying at university or starting new jobs. Others have settled in Victoria adding their "Mr. and Mrs." to the long list in the city.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Bring Spring Into Home With Fresh Hyacinths

By PENNY SAVER

Rooms are apt to look a little bare now that the tinsel and glitter has been packed away for another year. Just the right time to bring a touch of spring in to whisk away those midwinter doldrums!

Delicately scented hyacinths are brightening displays in florists' stores. Shades of blue, pink, white and a lovely creamy yellow set you dreaming about what to plant in your flower beds this year! Large pots with three or more flowers in full bloom sell for $2 while smaller ones containing a single hyacinth flower sell for 50 cents.

Oh the subject of house plants, there is a new hybrid bulb just in from Holland that will give you one of the most spectacular plants ever to brighten a living room. This is the amaryllis bulb which sells for $1.65. Bulbs, which are about nine inches in circumference are easy to care for and produce plants with eight or more flowers on every stalk.

Each of the large potted flowers grows to about seven inches wide the florist tells me. Plants bloom for about a month and are perennial so initial outlay seems more than justified.

Conversation piece on any table would be one of the "tulip boats" that I saw this week. "Boats" are really a part of a seed pod from a tulip tree, and are imported from Hawaii. Ones I saw contained tiny artificial flowers and dried grasses. Most effective!

Attractive pieces would not be cumbersome, they're low and light, and you could add your own individual touches such as colored beads, sea shells and other objects. Price of "tulip boat" is 50 cents.

For the square dance crowd there are special plastic bags in which to store wide-skirted crinolines and skirts.

Bags have extra large gussets to give that needed room. Evening gowns, hoop skirts and other special garments could be stored in these handy items. Coming in two lengths, the 36-inch bag costs $2.09 while $2.59 will get you one measuring 58 inches.

For names of stores where these can be bought give Penny a ring at EV 2-3131.

Horror Scene

LONDON (CP)—The British Transport Commission has banned a poster advertising a horror film from London subway stations. The poster shows a screaming girl being chased by a man with alligator scales on his face and hands.

Heat canned green beans in their own liquor. Drain, and add a generous lump of butter, a sprinkling of chili powder and a few capers.

Women's Styles for '60 to Put Waistline Where It Should Be Fingers have been crossed for some time now in the hope that the fashion silhouette would remain basically the same for spring and summer 1960.

Since 1947 when Christian Dior rocketed to fame with his New Look designers have placed waistlines everywhere but at the waistline. A few seasons ago they omitted it altogether.

Changes are stimulating but now that designers have decided to follow the normal line, the average woman is happier about fashion than she has been in a long time.

Advance releases and pictures which have been arriving this week from New York give ample evidence that the normal line will be the popular one.

There is a tendency to longer jackets in suits, although there is still plenty of latitude in choice. The short, square, front-buttoned jacket of many years is now being replaced by Neckline—Collarless coats and suits, clean longer neckline look.

SKIP THIS GOODBYE

When a guest is ready to leave a reception, it is necessary to go back through the receiving line to say goodbye to the host and hostess.

LOUISE DAVIS

Answers

No. A reception is usually attended by many guests. Greeting those in the line on arrival is sufficient. A host and hostess wouldn't expect a "goodbye" line to form too. This is an exception to the rule. A how-do-you-do and a goodbye would be too time-consuming. By the time the guests are ready to leave, the receiving line has generally broken up anyway.

Take nothing but your best wishes for the restaurant's success. Your best gift would be your future patronage. That is what the restaurant hopes and wants.

False Fillings

BRISTOL, England (CP)—A dentist here was fined by a dental council for claiming fees for fillings that were not necessary. He filled 16 teeth for a woman when only three fillings were required.

Next time your youngest child wipes his jellied hands on a clean shirt, the dog takes over your best house slippers and the faucet leaks, try a little smile. This is a big order. But experts on the subject claim laughter eases many irritations and tensions.

Waistline to hemline—Slim tiered skirts, often seen with tiered bodices.

Note—Times fashion editor Nona Damaske is now in New York to attend next week's fashion showings. She will be sending news of these events during the next two weeks.

Sleeve news: Wide and cape-type sleeves, widening the top of slim-bodied dresses, coats and suits. This prominent trend is seen in every New York collection for spring and summer.

a more rectangular shape closer at the front and rounder at the back. Also good are the hip-length jackets often widening at the base to lie loosely over full pleated skirts. Belted suits and collarless suits and coats will come to the fore.

Fashion on the double will make news, too—double skirts with the tunic almost as narrow as the hemline; Oriental over skirts slashed at the sides; double sleeves, double or triple necklines.

Dress and coat costumes will be seen in ever increasing numbers. Here the double idea will apply to the fabric. Double use of the same printed silk for coat, dress and coat lining.

New York predicts much use of the sleeveless daytime dress. Sleeveless dresses have always been a pet hate of Victoria women but we shall see.

The slender evening dress and the full-skirted short party dress will share honors. The dinner suit and evening dress and coat are still stressed.

Designers seem to be concentrating on basic good looks and good taste... more thought has gone into color and fabric.

Fashion pundits may be hard pressed to make banner headlines with the 1960 silhouette but women will look like women and what better news could you wish than that!

DEAR ABBY

Tit for Tat, Honey!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl of 19 and am going steady with a married man. He and his wife have not been living together for two years.

They have three kids who live with him. The oldest is a daughter of 14. He hired a woman to stay at his house to take care of the kids. He treats this woman like a wife. She drives his car and uses his charge account, but he keeps telling me that she is his hired woman. She's been there for two years.

I think he is lying to me about this woman. A 14-year-old girl can take care of herself and the two younger ones, so why doesn't he fire this woman? How can I find out what she really is to him?

JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: In a motherless home, where there are three children, the oldest of whom is 14, it is necessary to have a woman-look after them. This woman's role is far more above suspicion than yours. If she doesn't wonder what YOU are to him, don't you wonder what SHE is to him.

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I were married, I paid for our wedding bands as he was very much in debt at the time. All I could afford was a set of matched gold bands. One for him and one for me.

I have been wanting a small diamond solitaire engagement ring for some time. Now that we can afford it my husband says it isn't proper to give me a solitaire at this late date. I treasure my wedding band and do not want another one. Just a solitaire. Please help me get what I want.

WANTS A DIAMOND DEAR WANTS: Your engagement has passed, but you have many anniversaries and birthdays coming up. Quit sulking and nagging and put a sparkle in your eye. And maybe you'll get one for your finger.

DEAR ABBY: I have two sons, 12 and 14, and they still wet the bed at night. I just can't stand it any more. I

SALMON PUFF

Two cups canned pink salmon (one 1-pound can), salt, pepper and finely chopped celery, 8 slices enriched white bread, trimmed, 4 eggs, well beaten, 1 cup tomato sauce (one 8-ounce can), 1/2 cup milk, 1 tablespoon minced green pepper, 1/2 teaspoon salt, dash Worcestershire sauce, 3 tablespoons grated sharp cheddar cheese.

Drain salmon, reserving liquid. Flake salmon and blend in salt, pepper and celery to taste. Using this mixture make four sandwiches with the bread slices. Cut into fingers and arrange in a greased 8-cup baking dish, piling fingers on top of each other, if necessary. Blend together all remaining ingredients except cheese and including salmon liquid. Pour over salmon sandwich fingers. Let stand about one hour. Meanwhile preheat oven to 325 deg. F. (slow). Sprinkle grated cheese on top of salmon casserole. Bake in preheated slow oven 40 minutes, or until puffy, and top is firm and browned. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Now We Must Take Care To Get Enough Vitamins

This is the time of year when fresh vegetables are less plentiful. During recent months we have become accustomed to the luxury of a wide choice and must now take care that we still obtain an optimum intake of vitamins since we are no longer so tempted by the vegetable stands.

Cabbage and carrots are always with us and are vitamin packed. Most large markets have greens and then of course the frozen foods provide us with a large choice. The fruit habit is also a healthful as well as a pleasant one. The citrus fruits are our most potent source of vitamin C. This vitamin is widely scattered through our foods but in small quantities with the exception of the citrus world. Our daily intake of grapefruit or orange juice assures us vitamin C protection. The daily recommended allowance of vitamin C for men is 70 milligrams and for women 75 milligrams. During pregnancy the vitamin C requirement is greatly increased, the recommended daily allowance being 100 milligrams. During the nursing period it is 150, and for teenagers from 75 to 100.

Think how many folks let day after day pass without an adequate vitamin C intake! Many have orange juice for breakfast but this is often a very small glass. There is as much difference between really fine nutrition and that which just barely avoids the deficiency diseases as there is between vibrant health and a mere lack of disease.

If you do not have the fruit habit why not start it now?

Mary Calvert Marries In Calgary Church

Of wide interest in Victoria was the recent marriage of Miss Mary Elizabeth Calvert, daughter of the Bishop of Calgary and Mrs. Calvert, and Arthur Leslie Ward, Sarnia, Ont., son of Mrs. Alfred Ward, Tilbury, Ont.

Bishop and Mrs. Calvert formerly lived in this city when Bishop Calvert was Dean of Christ Church Cathedral. Miss Calvert is also formerly of Victoria. She was on staff in the Victoria Public Library for several years.

Her wedding took place in Christ Church, Elbow Park, and her father conducted the service. Bride chose for her wedding a gown of oyster white satin, peau de soie. Floor length dress was fashioned on simple lines. Fitted bodice featured a bateau neckline trimmed with a flat bow with streamers extending to the hemline and caught in loops by tiny pearls. Sleeves were tiny point.

Twelve more skirt ended in a full train. Her elbow length veil was held by looped pearl headpiece. As her "something new" the bride carried newly-revised prayer book for Anglican Church of Canada. Of white satin, prayer book was topped with white orchids and red roses.

A reception was held at Bishop's Court after the ceremony. A three-tier cake set upon the bride's mother's wedding veil which was sprinkled with orange blossoms from her headpiece, centred the bridal table.

Judge Hugh Farthing proposed the toast. Victorians at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Skillings. Leaving on a honeymoon trip to this city, the bride wore a suit of tweed in brown tones. Her camel hair coat and hat were in hazel nut shade. She had a corsage of bronze chrysanthemums. Newlyweds will make their home in Sarnia, Ont.

Russians 'Go for' the Magic of the Royal Family

LONDON (NEA) — Are the Russians envious of Britain's Queen? Are they secretly awed by the fairy tale magic which still clings to British royalty in the 20th Century?

This is the conclusion that some observers here are drawing after the smash hit scored by Queen Elizabeth II and the royal family at the recent British book exhibition in Moscow.

The British monarchy was represented at the exhibit by a huge picture album showing the Queen, the Duke of Edinburgh, Prince Charles and Princess Anne in various informal poses.

British books on science and medicine were ignored as the Russians queued up for a peek at the glittering picture album. As many as 60 people at a time stood in line for a glimpse of royal panoply, according to reports reaching here.

Undoubtedly the Russian women were curious to see the Queen's dresses, but this does not explain the male interest in British royalty.

The popularity with the Russians of Britain's royalty is one result of a thaw in Anglo-Soviet relations.

Another is the Anglo-Soviet cultural agreement just signed, which raises the hope that the Russians may end the jamming of British broadcasts to the Soviet Union.

Under the new agreement, Russia will undertake studies in the immediate future with a view to normalizing relations in the field of broadcasting.

This is the first time the Russians have admitted broadcasting relations are abnormal. Heretofore they pretended jamming did not exist.

The Anglo-Soviet pact also provides for exchange visits between the Old Vic Theatre and the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra and the Leningrad Symphony and the Kirov Theatre ballet.

A significant item is the scheduled visit to Britain's boarding schools of a group of Soviet headmasters from the new boarding schools to which the Soviet ruling class sends its children.

The new cultural agreement makes no provision, however, for the free sale and circulation of books and periodicals. Although cultural relations are on a more even keel, British despair of ever understanding the Soviet mentality. "Why, for example, was a harmless biography of ballerina Margot Fonteyn barred, along with 30 other books, from the British book exhibit in Moscow while Sir Winston Churchill's six-volume history of World War II was allowed to be displayed?"

Other British authors banned from the Moscow exhibit were Aldous Huxley, Bertrand Russell and Lord Halifax, the late foreign secretary.

The reason given by Soviet officials for the censorship is "those between Russian and that the banned works 'gave a English athletes.'

false impression of certain aspects of Soviet policy and contained inaccuracies."

The British Council, which arranged the Moscow exhibit, has come in for sharp criticism here for agreeing to the exclusion of the books.

Poet Stephen Spender calls the action "humiliating and repulsive," speaks of "abasing British literature on terms acceptable to Moscow."

"If these are the only terms on which exchange is possible," declares Spender, "we should confine cultural exchanges to those between Russian and that the banned works 'gave a English athletes.'

Informal royal pictures such as one above at Windsor Castle, when shown at book exhibition in Moscow recently, were very popular. Science and medical books remained on shelves. Photographed Gilbert A. Milne, Toronto, took the royal walk.

'Best-Dressed' Princess Finds Clothes in Ready-to-Wear Shops

LONDON (UPI) — Princess Alexandra, 23-year-old cousin of Queen Elizabeth, probably is the first person ever to make the list of best-dressed women with a wardrobe partly assembled in a ready-to-wear shop.

And as 'everyone in Britain knows, Alexandra and her mother, the beautiful Duchess of Kent, buy their underwear in a chain of department stores patronized chiefly by the working classes.

For the tall (five feet, nine inches) Alexandra is among the "poor relations," comparatively speaking, of the Royal family and she and her mother always have been budget-conscious shoppers and housekeepers.

UPI court reporter Margaret Saville has seen her shopping in a Regent Street store for classic English two-piece suits. These are the backbone of a wardrobe that is modest by the "dozen best" standards even if it does include formal wear by Norman Hartnell, one of the Queen's dressmakers.

That Alexandra has replaced her cousin, 29-year-old Princess Margaret, in the New York selections is taken in Britain more as a tribute to her rising sense value than to her dress sense.

Many Britons also believe that Princess Margaret never really belonged on the list. The tiny sister of the Queen wears what she likes and when she likes and what she likes doesn't always suit her. Her selection aroused some amusement here.

Now that Alexandra is taking a larger share of Royal family duties she is getting special wardrobes for special occasions such as overseas trips. These have to be very carefully made because she is a big girl (140 pounds plus) — too big really to be a clothes horse.

And she still prefers floppy sweaters and blue jeans for casual wear, probably the only person on the "dozen best" list who can make this statement.

CONVERSATIONAL FRENCH

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP) — An 18-year-old high school student is campaigning to have conversational French taught in elementary schools here.

Colleen Kelly, a Grade 13 student at St. Patrick's Collegiate, outlined her arguments on the question in a recent newspaper article.

"French shouldn't be just another subject, but an asset for life," she said.

Miss Kelly recalled making a trip to eastern Canada with her family two summers ago during which she met many French-speaking people.

"Although I had Grade 10 French, I had little confidence in my 'new language,' she said. "It was then I realized for the first time the need of good grounding in conversation and vocabulary, with less accent on grammar."

Friendlier in Canada Say Japanese Women

OTTAWA (CP) — A couple country's institutions," they of Japanese women students agreed in a recent interview. They are Sister St. Cecilia think campus life here is of the Sacred Heart, 35, a convert from Buddhism, here to study English, and Hiroko Hagiwara, 20, a Buddhist, daughter of Japanese ambassador Toru Hagiwara, studying French literature.

Both are students at the University of Ottawa's school of domestic sciences.

WORK TOGETHER

"Canadian students — of whatever race, color, creed or background in life they may be — work together in a friendly way," they said.

Sister St. Cecilia, who entered religious life at the age of 28, is an accomplished musician and taught piano in a Catholic school in Niigata where she also conducted a Japanese rhythm band.

She came here in September to learn English and will probably leave next year to continue teaching in Tokyo.

Miss Hagiwara, who has studied in Switzerland and at Waseda University in Tokyo, said the emancipation of Japanese women "is growing rapidly and they are becoming closer to their western counterparts, even to the way they dress."

She said all Japanese girls now can enter universities, provided they pass severe academic tests. Most of the students' costs are paid by the government.

During their free hours, the two Japanese women lead different lives. While Miss Hagiwara may be attending diplomatic receptions, Sister St. Cecilia retires to her religious order's home here for English-language novices.

"It's an ideal way to learn English," she said. "When I make a mistake my religious sisters correct me. Daily contacts with them help me increase my vocabulary."

Since taking over the route in October, 1958, they have never missed a day. To secure a B class licence to drive a bus, Mrs. Fyfe had to take a three-hour test which she passed easily. She has never had an accident and only one flat tire, something she can quickly change.

Aged Housing Problem Dealt With in Bulletin

OTTAWA (CP) — Family homes should have an attached, self-contained unit for old folks, an arrangement which would reduce the emphasis on "segregation of the generations," says a Canadian Welfare Council publication.

On Growing Old, bulletin of the council's committee on aging, also contends that old folks, homes and low-rental housing are not the answer to the problems of the majority of elderly people.

These should, in fact, be just one part of an over-all plan of community services aimed at helping the elderly stay out of institutions and look after themselves in their own or other families' homes.

Institutions should be only for those who "can no longer carry on independently."

The publication notes an encouraging growth of interest by governments in housing the aged and says government programs should consider that old folks "are reluctant to pull up established roots and are unhappy when separated from their friends and familiar surroundings."

The bulletin suggests some elderly people could share their homes with others, and recommends a British plan under which five to 10 elderly people share the work and expense of a large single dwelling.

ATTACHED QUARTERS
The small unit attached to a house is desirable for more reasons than merely providing shelter, the bulletin says.

"It is strongly advocated by those who feel the present trend of segregating the generations, particularly in the suburbs, has gone too far with detrimental consequences to the young as well as the old."

NOTED Shakespearean actress Rosalind Iden is the feminine half of one of this century's most famed husband-and-wife acting teams. She comes to Victoria next Wednesday with her actor-manager husband, Sir Donald Wolfitt. Among Shakespearean scenes in full costume they will present at the Royal Theatre will be Macbeth, Taming of the Shrew, Henry V, Midsummer Night's Dream and Richard III. The Wolfitts will perform only here and in Vancouver before embarking on an Australian tour.

AND NEVER AN EMPTY SEAT

Dazzling Variety In Shows, Music

This is the second of three articles by Mrs. Hurley concerning her impressions of the world of music, ballet and opera during her recent visit to London, Eng.

By JOAN MASON HURLEY

A friend who played for years with the Philharmonia Orchestra once remarked that London was a violinist's paradise, for if one chose to have a difference of opinion with one's conductor one could always move on to the Royal Philharmonic, the London Symphony, the BBC Symphony or the London Philharmonic.

Happy, he said, is a violinist in London, for he need never be out of a job. And happy too, he the music lover, for he need never be out of a concert.

What a mouth-watering list of illustrious names in London this winter, Menuhin, Beecham, Klemperer. And what mouth-watering programs too. I had heard before, and saw it confirmed that there is comparatively little modern music played in London. Possibly they don't feel obliged to prove a point, as on this continent.

Out of 11 concerts advertised to take place in three weeks at the Royal Festival Hall by the major orchestras, the fortunate (in my view) concert goer had only to listen to two real moderns out of 46 works scheduled to be performed. At every concert but one there was a concerto.

The batting score was: Beethoven piano concertos, four times; the Grieg A Minor, twice, and once each for Tchaikovsky's piano, a Mozart piano, Dvorak's cello and Handel's organ. Rather nice!

The beautiful Royal Festival Hall with its magnificent view across the river to the Houses of Parliament, is a most striking building. But I'm not sure that B.C.'s Queen Elizabeth Theatre is not more attractive inside.

The Festival Hall, built purely for concerts, has no backdrop to the stage and of course no curtains. Behind the orchestra there are four rows of benches where people can sit at reduced prices, watch the conductor's face, and be deafened by the timpani, who, on the fifth raised orchestra tier, is within touching distance.

Two things about the program were amusing. In a country where central heating is eschewed, a large proportion of the population has a cold.

Hence this notice on the front page:

Patrons are respectfully reminded that in an auditorium possessing the acoustical properties of the Royal Festival Hall the unstified coughing of only one or two people can mar the enjoyment of the whole audience.

How true too! A broadcast from the hall over the BBC is almost drowned out by the coughing. I thought of the Victoria Royal Theatre and the absolute silence during a concert.

The first two works played, the Vaughan Williams fantasia on a theme by Thomas Tallis and Beethoven's third piano concerto performed by Moiseiwitsch, were entirely omitted from the program notes, presumably as being so well known there was nothing left to say.

NEW YORK — Greetings from Sullivanville-on-the-Hudson. As you can see from the dateline, we're back in Gotham for another visit with Uncle Ed.

New York is still the nuttiest town in the world. The latest bit of Manhattan madness is about the tourist who visited a restaurant and created a crisis by insisting on paying cash for his meal.

They let him, too. But not until he had shown them his credit card as a reference.

Definition of a juke box... A payola victrola.

As usual, Sam our friendly cab-driver picked us up at Idlewild Airport and took us to New York via the scenic route—through Massachusetts.

We didn't mind it because we got a story out of it. This is about the inebriated motorist who was driving merrily in an eastbound direction on an obviously one-way west-bound street.

A motorcycle policeman finally overtook him and roared... "Watsamatter with you, are you out of your head? Can't you see those arrows?"

"Are you kidding?" mumbled the loaded one. "I can't even see the Indians."

Jack Leonard, the Sultan of Insultin', won't mention his name but he tells us he knows a TV performer with such a flat personality, that when he appeared on color TV, he came out black and white.

About another personality, Jack E. is quoted as saying... "He's such a great performer he'll bring free dishes to television."

As we have written before, there are more characters per square foot in New York City than in any other place in the world. Cab-drivers, waiters, clerks, and bartenders... everyone is a character.

This is a typical New York vignette... And it's true. It happened in a 48th street bar. A man paid a $1.45 bar bill with two dollars. The bartender gave him his change... A 50 cent piece and a nickel and waited for his tip. The man pocketed the 50-cent piece, left the nickel and walked out.

"Well," shrugged the bartender philosophically, "I gambled and lost."

Diogenes Schwartz, our friendly neighborhood philosopher, says... "One good way to save face is to keep the lower half of it shut."

ON 'FAILURE KICK' HE SAYS

B.C. Team in U.K. Feels Frustration in New Role

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer
LONDON (CP) — Bernard Braden is like the comedian who wants to play Hamlet. He'd like to do subtle, serious shows. Admirees assert he seldom gets a chance.

Show business' folk say: "That Braden! He could be a great actor."

This conflict between could-be and real has colored his 10-year stay in Britain.

It may help to explain why the parson's son from Vancouver is less in the public eye these days compared with an earlier period when he and his actress wife, Barbara Kelly, formed one of Britain's best-known teams.

GOOD ROLES FEWER

They had their own radio show, appeared in west end plays, dined in the best restaurants, lived comfortably with their three teen-aged children in a 15-room house on the Thames at nearby Shepperton. Ask any Englishman to name a Canadian personality and Braden would leap to mind.

Now Braden and Barbara are on what they cheerfully call a "failure kick." They still make plenty of money and their apartment in Knightsbridge is fashionable, but the rave notices and the good roles are fewer.

Braden takes it philosophically. Accustomed to the sibilant stage whispers of show business, the superheated world in which everybody—but everybody, dahling—has just landed the part of a lifetime. The Canadian actor has no bitterness.

A MYTH
"As a matter of fact, the so-called 'failure kick' is largely a myth, and certainly a matter of degree."

"I've been going through our diaries for the last year and discover that we haven't in fact done less work than in any other year, nor have we earned less money."

"It's been a question of work impinging less on the public, not so much of interest to the press, and of course not all of a quality we would want publicized anyway."

If there is any decline in popularity, it may result from the "changing climate" of British television.

MONEY TALKS

Over pate maison and silver-sides of beef in a Fleet Street restaurant, Braden warmed to the theme.

"You know, they used to say 8½ per cent of the population decided what people would see in this country. Then commercial television came along and busted things wide open. Now money is the deciding factor and money follows the mass appeal."

"If I've got a minority feeling in an era of mass appeal, that's just tough luck."

Bernard and Barbara are handicapped also by a trend against North American players. The postwar invasion has reached the point of diminishing returns: British managements are wary of picking Canadians or Americans when native actors are out of work.

CAUGHT IN BETWEEN

In January, Braden flies to his old hometown of Vancouver for television talks, but it looks as though the family is firmly rooted in Britain. Barbara's mother came from Manchester, and the actress was brought up on London Bridge. Is Falling Down, Oranges and Lemons, and Winnie the Pooh. She likes it here.

Bernie suffers from what some call "transatlantic splits." He feels a two-way tug.

"I feel sort of caught in between Britain and North America," he says. "I like a lot of things over here, but it staggers me sometimes when I think of the following there."

BERNIE AND BARBARA... slightly cooler.

is in this country for some of the best things in America—the writings of J. D. Salinger, for instance.

Braden is also a fan of Salinger, author of the oft-quoted Catcher in the Rye whose central figure is the original crazy mixed-up kid, Holden Caulfield.

As for people insisting that he could be a great actor, if he only had the chance, Braden shrugs and says he has started in five west end plays, at least two of which were "deadly serious."

"The fact that my primary impact was made as a comedian seems to make people forget that I'm an actor, and every time I appear as an actor I am 'discovered' by people who discovered me as such in another play several years earlier."

"It is obvious that in jumping around from comedy to drama, from brain trusts to sports shows and back again I've thoroughly confused the British public, but I'm afraid that's the way I work and I don't really propose to do anything about it."

Kirk Douglas' and Rock Hudson will be seen on the screen together for the first time when they co-star in "Viva Gringo" for Universal International next spring.

ART IN REVIEW

By MONCRIEFF WILLIAMSON

Lifetime's Creative Work Looked at in Retrospect

This week I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Charles Scott, ARCA, whose retrospective exhibition of paintings will be on view at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria until Jan. 31.

The exhibition, which occupies both galleries of the B.C. Centennial Wing is a vast affair, comprising some 70 works going back almost half a century, and in one of those self-revealing asides, to which artists as a breed are singularly addicted, Mr. Scott confessed, "I like every one of my paintings."

This was no vain boast of a puffed-up egotist, but the measured judgment of a man looking back at a lifetime's creative work and recalling moods and incidents of painter's progress. It is a mood I have witnessed frequently among those of a dedicated professionalism. Those artists so steeped in early training and supported by the knowledge of full observation.

Guiding him towards one of his oils, painted in 1933, "The Flowering Cherry," loaned by Miss Florence Fyfe-Smith, I endeavored to compliment him on what I considered a fine example of his art.

Had it not been for his self-sacrifice as a painter, there would probably be no Vancouver School of Art. The personal effort required to keep the Vancouver School of Art in existence during the Thirties was a challenge which he accepted gladly.

A graduate of the Glasgow School of Art, Mr. Scott was appointed art supervisor to the Calgary Schools in 1912. In 1914 he came West to Vancouver and apart from war service with the Canadian Infantry, he was art supervisor to the Vancouver schools till 1926.

At Wembley

From 1926 to 1952 he was director of the Vancouver School of Art and from 1930-1947 was lecturing in art methods at the University of British Columbia. That he was the only artist chosen to represent Western Canada at the British Empire Exhibition, Wembley, 1924, is an indication of the high esteem in which he was held by his fellow artists throughout the Dominion.

Is it any wonder that Mr. Scott found little time left for painting?

Yet he did paint, and the exhibition which we now see in Victoria perhaps contains the choicest examples in his range from solid portraiture to romantic.

It would be dishonest to state that I enjoy all of Mr. Scott's paintings. Some of the larger canvases leave me cold.

Sex, Comedy Spelled Fortune

"GOODNESS HAD NOTHING TO DO WITH IT," by Mae West (Prentice-Hall):

The autobiography of one of the most amazing figures of the entertainment world. From the time she was seven years old and started her stage career (she is now 66) Miss West has had a mind of her own and has used it with telling effect.

She wrote her own plays and movie scripts and parlayed a unique personality whose accent was on sex and comedy to fame and fortune.

If her acting was built on sexual allure, so was her personal life, she tells us in her book. She needed lots of men and had them, but she was not the marrying type and her early marriage at age 17 was a mistake that turned up years later to haunt her.

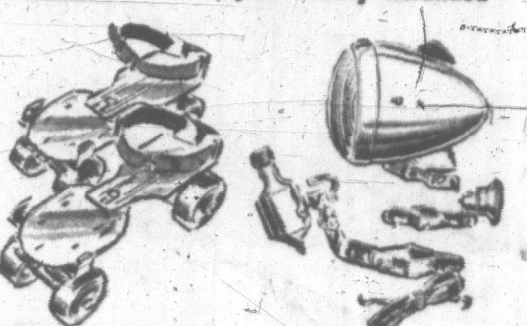

On her way up the success ladder she had trouble with the censors and the police but the public was with her and she had the satisfaction, among many others, of seeing her name make the dictionary—meaning a life-saving device.

The first message by telegraph—Samuel F. B. Morse's immortal "What Hath God Wrought!"—was transmitted on May 24, 1834, from the Supreme Court room of the U.S. Capitol.

A WRITER'S DIARY

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

When Vance Packard's book, The Status Seekers, appeared last spring I read it without special interest, because it seemed to me to be saying things which most people already knew. Now that it has been on the best-seller list for over 30 weeks I must revise my judgment.

Mainly most people did not know what was in Mr. Packard's book, and the terms in which I hear it discussed suggest that many of its readers found it shocking. But all that it says is that society in North America is separated into well-defined classes, that money is the mainspring of this class system, and that it is not easy to move from one class upward into another.

There must be many people who are blind to the world around them. In three novels I have tried to show how the class system works in Canada, and to my astonishment some readers have called me a snob and a defender of privilege because of it. But I invented nothing and defended nothing.

A Shortage of Underdogs

The stratifications, as Mr. Packard describes them, are to be seen everywhere, and never more plainly than from a newspaper office.

Of course the Diploma Elite does not slash at the Limited Success Class with riding whips, and the Real Lower Class does not spit and murmur curses at the Upper and Semi-Upper Classes drive by in their status-symbol cars.

Our society is democratic, in that most people have a vote and can expect a reasonably square deal if they go to law; very few people are overtly mean to those who are not as rich or powerful as themselves; there is an emphasis on charity and helping the under-dog which is occasion-

I tried only to describe what lay under my eyes. I feel better now that I have observed the huge success of Mr. Packard's book. Apparently great numbers of North Americans—perhaps a majority—are not aware that they live in a stratified society. Sancta simplicitas!

ally embarrassed by a shortage of under-dogs.

But a classless society when has earth ever boasted such a thing?

Having heard so much discussion of it during the past six months I re-read Mr. Packard's book. This time I was impressed by the slight attention he pays to that group within society which must be called, for want of a better easily-understood term, the Intellectuals.

This is a group which I would have thought deserved special notice, because it is a class which cuts across all classes and is therefore an important element in any society.

Food for Mind Offered Freely

Intellectuals are not the same creatures as what Mr. Packard calls the Diploma Elite. Possession of a university degree does not make anybody an Intellectual, and neither does the possession of money or the lack of it keep anybody out of the Intellectual group. Curiosity, a free mind, belief in good taste and belief in the human race are the qualities which make an Intellectual, and these things are likely to assert themselves anywhere.

Where they exist, poverty and riches, though significant, are always secondary. Our society makes books, pictures and music available to anyone who is not hopelessly destitute; where books are available free, the world of science is opened to anyone who can comprehend any part of it.

There has never been a time in human history when so much food for the mind and the spirit was offered so freely.

If Mr. Packard says little about the Intellectuals, does that mean that they do not exist? I do not think so; it means, rather, that they are less conscious of their existence, and less assertive, than in Europe and Asia.

Rouse Up the Intellectuals

They suffer, furthermore, from a sense of inferiority which shows itself, very often, in a desire to pose as Good Guys, who can be trusted by the Upper and Lower Classes.

All the Upper and Lower Classes should ever be able to predict about the Intellectuals is that they will put their influence where they believe curiosity, the free mind, good taste and belief in the human race are best served—and neither the Upper nor Lower classes have any monopoly of such things.

The cynic who says that every man has his price may be right, but what confuses the cynic when he has to deal with an Intellectual is that the price is not measured either in money or prestige. His values may not be specifically religious (though of course they can be so) but they are always spiritual, however much he may shy away from that word.

Mr. Packard is a shrewd man, and his omission of Intellectuals from his range of classes in North American society is undoubtedly calculated. He thinks they do not matter enough to mention, and he may be right. But they should matter, and they could matter, and I for one think it would be vastly better for North American society if they did matter more than they do.

The hardening of our mental arteries which has been so noticeable and distressing since 1940 could be checked and indeed reversed if our Intellectuals would awaken from their trance.

I do not pretend to know what will rouse them, but certainly one good move would be widespread protest against such books as The Status Seekers which regards them as an eccentric and inconsiderable rump, contemptuously noted.

AUTHOR FIRST-HAND OBSERVER AT COURT

... "a great job"

Welsh-born Guy Jones, author of "The Queen's Baby" is married to a Scots woman and lives in England. Since his mother came from Ulster, he can safely claim to represent all sections of the United Kingdom.

Rising Fleet-Street writer Jones, 36, has proved that it is possible to write fascinatingly about the British Monarchy without stooping to sensationalism.

Jones himself says, "I am first and foremost a Fleet Street man. I also have a considerable respect for the Monarchy in general and the Queen in particular. This is based on first-hand observation of court affairs."

"Happily, I can reconcile my duties as a newspaperman with my loyalty to the Crown. The Royal Family does a great job."

BEGINNING:

THE QUEEN'S BABY

First Child in 103 Years Born to Reigning Monarch

By GUY JONES

Crowds will surge outside Buckingham Palace one day soon to catch a glimpse of a bare official notice. It will tell Britain and the Commonwealth whether the Queen's third child—the first to be born to a reigning British sovereign for 103 years—is a boy or girl.

How, if at all, will this news change the line of succession to the Throne?

If the Queen's baby is a boy, he will be second in line to the Throne, after the 11-year-old Prince of Wales. If a girl, she will rank after Princess Anne, 9, as third in succession—a place now held by Princess Margaret.

So whether the baby is a boy or a girl, the birth will shuttle Princess Margaret, who is 29, back to fourth place. After her will come the Duke of Gloucester (the Queen's uncle), 59, then the Queen's cousins, in order—Prince William of Gloucester, 18, Prince Richard of Gloucester, 15, the Duke of Kent, 24, Prince Michael of Kent, 17, and Princess Alexandra of Kent, 23.

Curiously, the 19th and 20th in this royal "Top Twenty" are a baby daughter born in June this year to the Duke and Duchess of Fife, and King Olav of Norway, 56, who is grandson of King Edward VII.

Boy or girl, the baby will be legally styled "of Windsor."

Seven years ago the Queen declared in Council that she and her children should be styled and known as the House and Family of Windsor and that her descendants, other than female descendants who married, and their descendants, should bear the name of Windsor.

The baby will also be born with the title of Royal Highness and Prince or Princess of Great Britain. Should it be a boy, he will, no doubt, be created a Royal Duke at the age of 21.

There are, however, curiously few former Royal ducal titles available. Prince Charles is both Duke of Cornwall and Duke of Rothesay; Edinburgh is a Royal Dukedom; and Cambridge has virtually ceased to be one.

A Boy Could Be 'Duke of Ottawa'

Two others stand out as strong possibilities—the Royal Dukedoms of York and Clarence. Since both her father and grandfather before succeeding to the Throne were Dukes of York, the Queen will obviously prefer the former title.

It has been suggested that he might also be given a Commonwealth title. And since Canada is the senior Commonwealth nation, he could become "Duke of Ottawa."

The position will be vastly different if the baby is a girl. As Princess Anne would be the elder daughter it is practically certain that one day she will become the Princess Royal (the present Princess Royal, the Queen's 62-year-old aunt, is 11th in line of succession).

So any sister she may have would simply be known as Princess.

Then again, boy or girl, the whole situation will change if Prince Charles marries and has children. In that event, the right of succession would pass to his descendants.

This can be illustrated by the tortuous route by which the present Queen came to the throne.

In 1892 the Prince of Wales' eldest son, the Duke of Clarence, died unmarried at 28. His younger brother, the Duke of York, thus inherited the succession.

The Prince of Wales succeeded Queen Victoria as

'Escape Plot' Broken

HAYANA (AP)—Cuban military authorities said today they have uncovered an escape plot at La Cabana military prison organized among 190 persons accused of trying to overthrow Fidel Castro's regime.

'Stew' to Get Equal Billing

OTTAWA (UPI)—The federal government is cracking down on misleading labels on food containers.

The new regulations being brought in by the food and drug directorate of the health and welfare department require canners and packers to tell the housewife exactly what she is buying.

This will cut out much criticized practices like that of printing "beef" in larger type than "stew" on beef stew containers.

The net contents of the package will have to be marked on the main panel of the label.

The new labelling laws also will require the common name of a food to be printed in identically-sized print after the name of a food if it contains more than one word, like asparagus cuttings or flaked tuna.

ONE PLACE

The complete list of ingredients will have to be shown in one place instead of scattered over the container.

The drug directorate has given firms two years to use up stocks of existing labels before they have to come up with new ones.

A-BLAST WARNING TO PLANES

PARIS (UPI)—The government announced today it has warned international air carriers that fly over Africa to stand by for a 12-hour notice of restricted areas before explosion of France's first atomic bomb in the Sahara.

The announcement indicated the test will be carried out soon, possibly before the widely speculated dates of February or early March.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

Dear God, in our moments of high enthusiasm and encouragement we would not forget Thee. On the contrary we would credit Thee for this new-found enthusiasm, for the source of our encouragement, aid for directing our thoughts, energies, and activities to this new and fresh outlook upon our problems. While we always turn to Thee in our moments of discouragement, never let us fail to turn to Thee with thanks and gratitude in our high moments of enthusiasm and encouragement and to feel Thy close presence in Christ's name. Amen.

Bennett Offer To Get Action

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Target in the Victoria University Building Fund drive is certain to be raised to $2,500,000 from $1,500,000 following a campaign dinner inaugurating the drive.

CANADA, CHINA NEXT ON LIST FOR MONTY

LONDON (AP)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery arrived home today from talks with India's Prime Minister Nehru and disclosed he will visit Peking next May to see Red China's leader Mao Tse-tung.

Before going there, he said, he will first visit Canada, in April.

He told reporters at London Airport that the Nationalist Chinese government on Formosa doesn't count at all.

"The true government of China is in Peking—that which governs 600,000,000 Chinese."

Campaign chairman R. B. Wilson said today the executive committee will meet Monday to discuss Premier Bennett's offer at the dinner Friday night to match every dollar raised up to $2,500,000.

"I feel it is inevitable we will accept the premier's proposal," Mr. Wilson said, "and we are calling the committee together to discuss it formally."

Premier Bennett made his surprise announcement to a distinguished audience of 150

representing Victoria, Vancouver Island and Vancouver at the dinner in the Union Club.

"This government will gladly match, not $1,500,000; your present objective, but $2,500,000 over a period of five years. If you raise the $2,500,000, we will match every dollar on the basis of not more than $300,000 in any one year."

The premier's offer was received with resounding applause from every corner of the room.

Work Begins On Huge Dam Across Nile

ASWAN, U.A.R. (UPI)—President Nasser today pressed a button that set off 11½ tons of dynamite and started construction of the Aswan high dam, biggest project in Egypt since the Suez Canal 100 years ago.

The blast loosed 20,000 tons of rock from a formation overlooking the Nile River. Nasser's United Arab Republic will use the dam to harness the river for hydro-electric power and irrigation in a long-term project aimed at raising living standards of the poverty-ridden peasants. Massive Soviet aid is making it possible.

Nasser's personal popularity and enthusiasm for the project appeared to be at a peak. Cheering thousands packed the seven-mile route from the airport to the dam. It took Nasser's car an hour to push through.

Thousands chanted: "Allah be praised. We are building the dam." Men and women danced in the streets, with dozens of waving native bands accompanying them.

Bugles hailed Nasser as he reached the site of the ceremony to see work begin on his pet dream. The Soviet minister of power station construction, Ignaty Novikov, was among the guests of honor.

Saanich Man Dies in Crash

He was Cornelius Leonard Mitchell, 25, son of Col. Reginald E. Mitchell, retired, of 2500 Sinclair Road.

The accident, in which another person was hurt, occurred about two miles west of Woodbridge, a Toronto area community on highway seven. Trevor Chappell, 20, of Bolton, Ont., was identified as the other driver.

'No Place in B.C. Has More Money'

"There is lots of money in British Columbia and no place in this province has more money than Victoria."

He said financial experts at first advised the UBC development fund to seek only $2,000,000 while the provincial government offered to match monies raised up to $10,000,000.

"Today the UBC fund is ap- proaching $10,000,000."

He urged that the new university should be called the University of Victoria and that it should co-operate at all times with the University of British Columbia.

Dr. George Edward Hall, president of the University of Western Ontario, who was guest speaker at the dinner, said:

"Victoria College, within the great University of British Columbia, is a significant part of the university structure of Canada."

"Its 57 years of growth, its survival and its present development is a monument to its members and a reminder of its greatness in the making."

Advance Donations of $200,000

Mr. Wilson gave the campaign a spirited send-off by announcing, that already, before the campaign was officially underway, they had commitments amounting to nearly $200,000.

The faculty and staff of Victoria University had subscribed $27,604 towards the fund. Four professors had pledged $3,808—an average of $1,470 each.

Fourteen assistant professors had pledged an average of $567 each.

Judge J. B. Clearihue, chairman of Victoria University Council, and Mrs. Clearihue had pledged $5,000. Individual gifts included one for $7,500 and others of considerably higher amounts had been promised.

"Already several industrial firms have signified their generous support with pledges and cash in line with our hopes.

"We have received one donation of $25,000 and one of $50,000. One local firm has indicated a pledge of $25,000 provided there is a comparable effort by others in the community."

"In a campaign of this size," said Mr. Wilson, "many gifts will be spread over a period of years. Our objective is to receive most of the money within a three-year period. But already we have indications that many will be using a five-year period. And a longer term will be available for those who desire it."

"The income tax provisions are an incentive for both per-

'THOUSAND DAYS' TO MARS AND BACK

LONDON (AP)—Soviet scientists have worked out the cosmic route for a flight to Mars and back, Moscow radio reported today.

Prof. Dmitry Martynov was quoted as saying that such a trip would take about 1,000 days.

He said the flight to the planet would take 275 days, the spacemen would have to spend about a year there awaiting a favorable opportunity to take off again, and the return journey to earth would take another 275 days.

"A trip to the nearest planets is quite feasible," Martynov said.

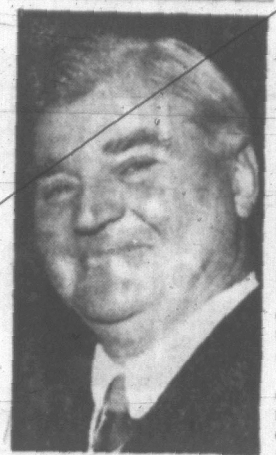

"The atmosphere on Mars contains carbon dioxide, oxygen and a certain amount of water. The temperatures are relatively moderate, reaching 20 degrees centigrade (68 degrees Fahrenheit) during the day on the equator and falling to minus 40 at night."

"Life is possible, and there are signs of vegetation and, possibly, micro-organisms. The only planet in our solar system where man could find acceptable living conditions is Mars; and it is no coincidence that it is now attracting so much attention from astronomers throughout the world."

ANEURIN BEVAN

Foes Forget Differences In Well Wishes to 'Nye'

LONDON (AP) — Aneurin Bevan, the bad boy of British politics, has learned in illness that everyone loves him after all.

The 62-year-old fighting socialist, with his keen sense of irony, must find some humor in the situation as he stares at the ceiling in his room at London's Royal Free Hospital. He underwent a major stomach operation Dec. 29.

In the hidebound London clubs where once the mere mention of his name touched off apoplectic rages there are references now to "good old Nye."

Get-well notes keep pouring

in on him from Conservatives as well as socialists. Men who have clashed with Bevan for years openly express relief at the medical bulletins indicating he is recovering his health.

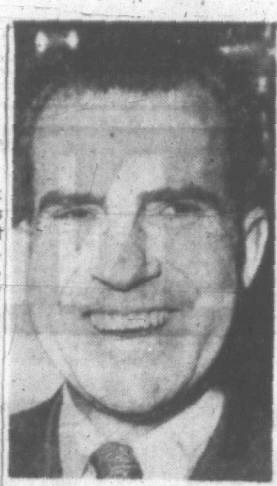

The fiery Welshman's absence from the public arena—even temporarily—brought home to political friends and foes alike how much color and drama he lent to the scene all these years.

Bevan is still a full-blown socialist. His beliefs still stir up controversy even within the ranks of his own Labor party. But he is not regarded as a party rebel any more.

The left-wingers Bevan once led have launched a new attack on moderate Hugh Gaitskell's leadership of the party, and years ago expressed relief at the medical bulletins indicating he is recovering his health.

Bevan is a patient under the nationalized health service which he fathered as a member of the old post-war Labor government. His doctors have not defined the exact nature of his operation. But Gaitskell, now on a lecture tour in the United States, has emphasized that Bevan is not suffering from cancer.

VICE-PRESIDENT Richard Nixon marked his 47th birthday today by letting it be known he will enter U.S. presidential primaries in New Hampshire and Oregon. He is considered a shoo-in for the Republican nomination.

LONDON (AP) — Peterborough United, little-known team of part-time footballers, won 3-2 at Ipswich today and led five giant-killers into the fourth round of the Football Association Cup, Britain's most glamorous soccer tournament.

Peterborough, a 5,000-to-1 shot against winning the cup, snatched the winner against Ipswich with only three minutes to go.

Inside right Ron Emery sidefooted the ball over the snow into the net—and Peterborough was through to the next round.

In other upsets, Bradford City blanked Everton 3-0, Watford defeated Birmingham City 2-1, Port Vale ousted Cardiff City 2-0 and Southampton romped over Manchester City 5-1.

UPSET EVERY YEAR

Every year the cup throws up its giant-killers. Peterborough, the team considered too weak for a place among England's league teams, is the shock squad this time.

Bath City, the only other non-league survivor in today's third round, lost 1-0 to Brighton.

Rotherham United, trailing first division Arsenal 2-0 early in the second half, scored two goals in nine minutes to force a 2-2 tie.

Newcastle inside right Bobbie Eastham scored Newcastle's equalizer two minutes after halftime and "grabbed" a 2-2 tie against Wolverhampton Wanderers in the top-draw match of the day. A sellout crowd of 62,350 turned out for it.

Scratch Victory
Cup holders Nottingham Forest scraped through to a 1-0 victory over Third Division Reading. Little Reading missed a penalty nine minutes from time.

Luton Town, defeated in last year's cup final, scored two second-half goals to win 2-1 at Exeter.

English League leaders Tottenham Hotspur, favorites to win the cup, defeated Newport 4-0.

Manchester United, another favored team, romped to a 4-2 victory at Derby. Chelsea

COULD THIS BE 'CADDY'?

BORDEAUX, France (Reuters) — An unidentified blue-grey "sea-monster" about 13 feet long, 10 feet wide and weighing several tons has been washed up on Cape Ferret beach, in the Bay of Biscay.

Resembling a sea elephant, the monster has huge ears protruding from a flat head, webbed feet about 6½ feet long and thick black hair growing from its bulging sides.

Boy Alive

KAMLOOPS — The parents of a missing 15-year-old boy have received a Christmas card from him after being told by two Indian mystics that their son is dead.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Claude-pierre got the card Wednesday from their son Holgar, missing since he left home on a shopping trip to a local supermarket Nov. 12. The letter, postmarked Boston-Bar, B.C., contained a note saying he was well and looking for a job.

WINNIPEG—Man! What a mixed-up date! An eight-year-old boy named Dennis, loaded with the grand total of $2.05, took seven-year-olds Sandra and Margaret to a movie Thursday.

After the movie, he put Margaret on a bus and paid her fare. Turned out it was the wrong bus and she didn't get home until 11:15 p.m., after the bus driver called police and got her an escort.

Young Sandra disappeared after walking Dennis home. Fifteen policemen searched for hours, but didn't find her until Friday morning when they checked the boy's home and found her sleeping behind the bathtub.

Neither the boy nor his parents knew she was there. Sandra had been staying with another family while her parents were out of town.

SYRACUSE, Sicily — Police bearers and mourners ran screaming in terror here when they heard a wailing sound coming from the vault where they planned to place the body of 84-year-old Mrs. Livia Bianchi.

A priest was called to investigate. Inside the vault he

Edward VII and his son, the Duke of York, later followed him to the throne as George V. He was, of course, the present Queen's grandfather.

In 1936, George V died and was succeeded by his eldest son, the present Duke of Windsor, as Edward VIII. Less than a year later he abdicated.

He was then unmarried and the succession passed to his brother, King George's second son, who became King George VI.

Had King George VI not married, and had children then his brother, the present Duke of Gloucester would have succeeded him on his death in February, 1952. But he did, and his eldest child, Elizabeth Alexandra Mary Windsor, thus became Queen Elizabeth II.

Succession to First-Born Son

Constitutionally, the succession goes to the first-born son—a custom called primogeniture. Should the eldest son die, then the next eldest succeeds him. Only when there is no son can a daughter succeed to the throne.

Apart from Queen Victoria, whose nine children were all born after she became Queen, there has been only one Queen Regnant in Britain to have a child after ascending the throne.

She was Mary, Queen of Scots, mother of James I and VI. In fact, the only Queen Regnant to have children at all was Queen Anne (1702-1714), but all her offspring died before she became Queen.

The new baby will, in fact, be the first-born to a Queen Regnant since April 14, 1857—the birthdate of Princess Beatrice, last child of Queen Victoria. Both Charles and Anne (Nov. 14, 1948, and Aug. 15, 1950, respectively) were born before the Queen's accession.

What will the third child be called? Royal circles are buzzing with tips. But the choices are spread far and wide. Among them: (For a boy) Albert, James, Andrew or George; (for a girl) Victoria, Mary, Charlotte or Elizabeth.

But it is fairly certain that names for the child have not yet been decided by the Queen and Philip. Albert or Victoria are suggested because the Queen, a fervent admirer of her great-grandmother, is known to have a strong liking for both names.

But, then, if the present revival of Jacobite names (Charles and Anne are two) is continued, it is possible that James or Mary might be chosen.

A New Name for the Royal Family?

Then again, George might be favored, even though it is one of Prince Charles' names. George was, after all, the name of the Queen's father and grandfather. For a girl, Elizabeth is another possibility. Again this is one of Princess Anne's Christian names, but royalty has never shown hesitancy in repeating a name already held as a secondary name by a royal child.

Some royal circles expect a boy to be called Andrew, after his paternal grandfather, Prince Andrew of Greece, and a girl Charlotte, known to be favored by both parents and sufficiently unorthodox to lift royal names out of the rut of precedence.

But the Queen and Prince Philip are also known to be liberal in "name outlook." So it is quite possible that they may decide to introduce one new to the Royal Family.

What are the chances of a boy or a girl? According to the doctors, they are about equal. But the Royal Family shows a slight preponderance of boys.

King George III had nine sons and six daughters. Queen Victoria four sons and five daughters, Edward VII two sons and three daughters and George V five sons and one daughter.

But Prince Philip's father, the late Prince Andrew of Greece, had four daughters and only one son.

Whether it is a boy or a girl, there can be no doubt that its arrival is being eagerly awaited by both parents. It is understood that the royal couple want four children—two boys and two girls.

And there might be an omen in the fact that both wanted first a son and then a daughter.

DANCE HALL BARS NEGRO GIRL IN NEW BRUNSWICK

FREDERICTON (CP)—A 20-year-old Negro girl said Friday she was barred from a dance here Wednesday night.

Betty McDougall, daughter of Cpl. and Mrs. William L. McDougall, of nearby Oromocto, said, "I was shocked and really upset. I was hurt more than I can tell you."

Miss McDougall, a business machine operator with the New Brunswick Hospital Services Commission, said she was told by the man at the dance hall door that "colored people aren't allowed to come here anymore."

She said she had gone to dances at the hall before. On this occasion she was with two girl friends, both white.

UNIVERSITY

INITIAL MISTAKE GOOD OMEN

There are many good reasons for having a university in Victoria, Premier Bennett told campaign officials at a dinner marking the start of Victoria University building fund drive.

"Perhaps the best reason is that my invitation to come here tonight was addressed to the Hon. R. B. Bennett."

"In the days when I belonged to his party I have known where to forward this invitation. Now I have strayed from that faith I don't know where to send it."

First Degrees

"A convocation will be held here in 1961 for the first presentation of degrees. These will be highly respected degrees of the University of British Columbia."

Mr. Wilson spoke of the fine spirit of co-operation and respect existing between UBC and Victoria University.

He rejected the suggestion in some quarters that a university in Victoria would be "duplicating" facilities at UBC.

"In spite of the rapid expansion at UBC, the weight of numbers weighs heavily on their campus and this building program is necessary to relieve the pressure there. It has the full support of UBC governors."

He pointed out that Victoria's business world would benefit since the institution operates on a budget of $1,000,000 a year and, with additional enrolments and new buildings, would probably reach $2,500,000.

'Big Industry'

A student away from home spends about $1,200 in a year. More than a third of the students are from outside the Greater Victoria area. So, if the new buildings were not provided, many students would have to journey elsewhere for a portion of their education.

"This project will circulate a tremendous amount of money and is the kind of industry we have been looking for. And... In providing Grade 13, Victoria College is very likely saving the local school board, and the city and surrounding municipalities, somewhere between $60,000 and $70,000 a year."

Mr. Wilson said the building of a university on Vancouver Island would fulfil a dream that had persisted since the days of the early pioneers.

"If we fail it will be because we have not measured up to the imagination and pioneering spirit of our forefathers, and we we will, indeed, have become a city of lotus eaters."

THE QUEEN'S HOPE

LONDON (UPI)—Queen Elizabeth, whose third child is due in a few weeks, is hoping it will arrive Feb. 6, the anniversary of the death of her father. It was on that date in 1952 that George VI died in his sleep. The Queen has a deep belief in the strength and continuance of the family line of the royal house of Windsor.

Modern Tempo Too Fast For Musicians

The accelerated pace of modern living has forced many great musicians into a position where periodically they must "drop everything in order to catch up with music and themselves," Dr. Boyd Neel, world-famous conductor and dean of the Faculty of Music at Toronto University said Friday.

Here to conduct Victoria Symphony Orchestra Sunday and Monday, Dr. Neel was addressing a meeting of Victoria Lions Club.

A physician as well as a musician, Dr. Neel said: "I think I am the only living person who has conducted a concept in the West End of London, and on the same night delivered a baby in the southeast section of the city."

Dr. Neel said at that time he had a large practice in medicine, but was so devoted to music that ultimately he had to choose between the two. "I chose music," he said.

BONNER REJECTS PROBE

VANCOUVER (CP)—Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi insisted Friday there is nothing wrong with his administration.

"They can order 15 or 20 royal commissions into my department—I couldn't care less," he said.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said that although Mr. Gagliardi has been accused of contempt of court, all he did was to follow correct legal advice.

Both ministers made their comments on demands by Liberal leader Ray Perrault and Progressive Conservative leader Deane Finlayson that a royal commission inquire into the highways department.

Mr. Gagliardi has been accused of contempt of court by Vancouver lawyer K. E. Meredith, who has filed notice he will apply Jan. 15 for the minister's committal to jail. The contempt is alleged to have occurred when the high-

Family Adventurers Set Sail for South

SEATTLE (AP)—Twenty-two men, women and children set out in a 100-foot converted refrigerator ship Friday on the first leg of an adventure they hope will take them to the Galapagos Islands on the equator.

First stop on the 5,600-mile journey was to be Lopez Island in the San Juan group 50 miles to the north. There Capt. Don Harrsch said marine equipment belonging to Fletcher Burgan, chief engineer of the vessel Alert, will be loaded.

From there the Alert will sail to Port Angeles to load lifeboat davits and cradles before turning southward.

About 150 persons were on hand at sailing time to wish the Alert and her passenger-crew "bon voyage." By late evening the ship had reached Port Townsend, the coast guard said.

The Alert will pick up 13 other adventurers at San Pedro, Calif. Harrsch plans a stopover in Costa Rica, then will proceed to San Cristobal in the Galapagos.

The settlers plan to start a self-supporting colony, farming both the land and the sea.

GREATEST TASK OF 60's Trouble-Free Car Aim of Engineers

By JACK VANDENBERG

DETROIT (UPI)—Automotive engineers will concentrate on making cars more and more trouble-free in the next decade, the new president of the Society of Automotive Engineers has predicted.

Harry E. Chesebrough, general manager of the Plymouth Division of Chrysler Corp., will be installed as the new head of the SAE at its annual meeting next week.

He celebrated in advance by describing the role the SAE played in bringing about new developments in autos—and made a few predictions at the same time.

"There'll be a lot of new developments in the industry in the next decade, particularly to make driving easier, more comfortable and more economical," Chesebrough said.

"The greatest task of the auto engineer in the decade of the 1960's was to keep a car running," he said. "In the 50's a car's operating qualities, established, switched to refinement, more comfort, convenience, performance and safety."

"The compact cars are the best expression of what we accomplished in the 50's and they give us a good jumping-off spot for the 60's," he said.

He added the company will not pass into U.S. control when it merges with Mount Baker Plywood Ltd. The merged company would be 75 per cent Canadian controlled and about 40 per cent of common shares would be made available to the public.

B.C. Truck Loggers Association, representing about 170 large and small companies, has protested the government's decision on the licence to Lands and Forests Minister Williston.

have been removed. The U.S. steel strike, settled earlier this week, had been one of the reasons quoted by investors as holding the market back. The other was year-end tax-selling which had been greatly affecting western oils. The removal in late December of this factor has resulted in an upsurge and buying power had definitely picked up.

Still overhauling the markets are the current tight money policy and the forthcoming U.S. presidential elections.

Industrials which began the week with a gain of nearly three points on index finished with a disappointing drop of more than a point. Base metals and golds were both strong throughout the week and showed increases.

Two bright spots among industrials involved offers for acquisition of shares of oil refining companies.

On Thursday Shell Oil Company purchased control of North Star Oil, a western firm. The stock soared 10 1/2 points at 33 1/2 over Wednesday's close of 22 1/2.

ESSO PURCHASE
On Friday Esso Standard Inter-American Inc. offered to purchase all outstanding common shares of International Petroleum at $45 U.S. a share. The stock immediately streaked up 10 1/2 points at 42 1/2 on a turnover of only 125 shares.

Banks had a rough week with all six listed declining. In the mining section copper were the strongest during the week.

Investors have been keeping an eye on this base metal as copper strikes continue in the U.S. and shortages are becoming a problem.

The National Energy Board hearings on gas export proposals which got under way at Ottawa this week have kept western oils from showing any strong increases but on index at Toronto they were ahead more than a point.

SEAWAY HIKES

Cargo 7% in First Year

OTTAWA (CP)—Cargo moved through the St. Lawrence Seaway in the 1959 navigation season showed an increase of 71 per cent over the amount carried by the old St. Lawrence canals in 1958.

The Canadian and United States seaway authorities said Friday preliminary traffic statistics show that 20,100,000 tons of cargo were moved through the seaway last year. This was a gain of 8,300,000 tons over the 11,800,000 tons moved in 1958.

The upbound movement increased by 6,150,000 tons or by 132 per cent and the downbound by 2,180,000 tons or 31 per cent. Bulk cargo formed 91 per cent of the total movement.

The St. Lawrence Seaway authority said the figures are subject to revision when all cargo returns have been processed.

A Pioneer of 'College' Gets Glimpse at Future of 'University'

Bridging the years since 1903, when she taught the first tiny class at Victoria College, Mrs. Henry Esson Young (left) looks wistfully into the future as she hears Dr. Harry Hickman, present principal, discussing the college's new status as a university. Mrs. Young, whose husband was an early minister of education in B.C., graduated from McGill University in 1895 and was first president of the University Women's Club. She was guest of honor at a dinner marking the start of Victoria University Building Fund Friday night and heard Premier Bennett pay tribute to her and her husband as

"great pioneers of education in British Columbia." UBC president Norman MacKenzie and campaign chairman R. B. Wilson outlined plans for the future development of Victoria University.

'UNDERSTANDING' ... CAN BE OUR SALVATION

Barriers of Mind and Soul Big Challenge of Education

The universities and colleges of the English-speaking world are engaged in a constant battle against the barriers of misunderstanding, hatred, jealousy, intolerance and injustice, Dr. George Edward Hall, president of the University of Western Ontario, said here Friday night.

"These barriers are in the minds and souls of men," Dr. Hall told a dinner marking the start of the Victoria University building fund drive.

He said the universities and colleges, through their teaching to millions of students, were fighting the barriers of prejudice with "all of their mental and spiritual resources."

"Our task is the more difficult as we see that science has today, just as a hundred years ago, become the vanguard of society."

"Advances in the social sciences and in the humanities, which should have prepared us as individuals and as nations for life in this scientific age, were found wanting.

"Fortunately, greater effort is now being made and the impact will soon be felt. Only through knowledge and the application of that knowledge by the leaders of our societies can the problems associated with human endeavor and human welfare be resolved."

"An understanding of people and of human relations can be our salvation."

Dr. Hall said universities and colleges are becoming even more vital forces in the study and actual practice of everyday living.

DANGERS RECOGNIZED

"And, even with its limited financial resources, there are few if any universities anywhere which carry to its vast community the opportunities for knowledge, and an insight into the challenges of society, as does the University of British Columbia."

Dr. Hall said UBC recognized that the degeneration of world conditions was caused by prejudice, ignorance, intolerance, lack of moral discipline, disregard for the rights of others, social inequalities, hunger, low living standards and loss of faith.

"And your University is trying to do something about it."

He said president Norman MacKenzie and his colleagues recognized that the threat of atomic warfare "accentuated these festering thorns in the human flesh" and had focused attention on the lack of agreement to ultimate human objectives.

WISER DEVELOPMENT
"They know, too, that we all must recognize, understand, study and offer positive solutions to revive man's faith in himself."

Referring specifically to the establishment of a university in Victoria, Dr. Hall said: "I believe it is academically sounder and financially wiser to develop existing universities and colleges than it is to establish and operate numbers of new institutions throughout a province."

"HEARTY" wishes for a laydown slam hand like this when the Vic-Van-Isle Kinettes bridge tournament opens Jan. 25 are entertained by Mrs. Pamela Shemill, chairman of the tournament committee, and Mrs. Elda Mendels. Perpetual trophy and cash prizes are offered in tournament. Entries close Jan. 16. (Halkett Photo.)

NEW INDUSTRY—'ALE-ING'

UK's Bass Bottled Here

A new industry—bottling and distributing British ales—is planned for Victoria.

Brian H. Roberts, general manager of Growers' Wine Co., 3948 Quadra, said today his company has completed arrangements to import, bottle and distribute Bass Ale, one of the leading British beverages.

British ales will be shipped to Victoria in heavily-insulated stainless steel tanks. Growers' Wine is studying the possibility of using the tanks to ship concentrated apple juice from the Okanagan back to the Old Country.

Unemployment Falls Below Past Few Years

Unemployment in Greater Victoria is down compared with the same period during the last several years, a National Employment Service official said Friday.

The figure is 329 below the same date in 1959.

Factors contributing to the present unemployment situation are closure of shingle and sawmills; logging slowdown due to weather; low level of shipyard employment construction industry slowdown. There are now 3,697 men and 1,513 women registered for work, 90 men and 61 women more than a week ago.

Copter Airlifts Man to Jubilee

James Island 'Mercy Flip' First Landing at Hospital

Residents in the Royal Jubilee Hospital area craned necks shortly before noon today when a helicopter landed in the hospital parking lot with an injured man.

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE

A little of this, that and the other is the weather story for the weekend.

Mostly cloudy; partial clearing; a bit of sunshine; snow in Sunday's early hours; rain Sunday afternoon; low tonight between 30 and 35; and high Sunday of 40, summarizes the official forecast.

It was the first time on record a copter had touched down here on hospital property.

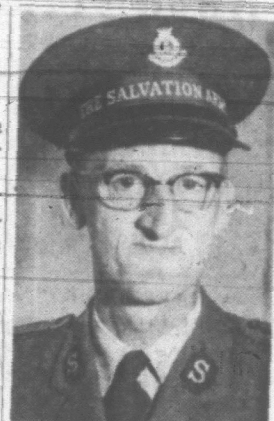

The whirlybird carried R. B. Carpenter, works manager of the Canadian Industries Ltd. James Island explosives plant who had a broken wrist, believed to have been sustained in an accident earlier today at home.

A COINCIDENCE

A copter of Vancouver Island Helicopters Ltd., based at Patricia Bay, "just happened" to be at James Island when the accident took place, a company spokesman said. Accident details were not available at press time.

DIVORCES

A divorce was granted in B.C. Supreme Court, Victoria, recently to: Joseph Morrison Carr, 1010 Linden Avenue, from Helena Rose Carr, 2026 Goldsmith, whom he married at Hamilton, Ont., in 1939.

'Avoid the Rush' Voting Supported

A campaign for earlier municipal elections—to avoid the Christmas rush—was backed today by Greater Victoria's three reeves.

Reeves George Chatterton of Saanich, George Murdoch of Oak Bay and A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt expressed strong support for the move.

They indicated their councils will support a ballot by mail issued by the Union of B.C. Municipalities to authorize a request for amendment of the Municipal Act at the coming session.

CITY PARKING LOT TO OPEN ON THURSDAY

First off-street parking lot in the city's downtown plan goes into operation officially Thursday.

Some 113 metered spaces will be available on the Cormorant Street lot, site of the demolished public market building.

City engineer James Garnett told public works committee Friday that the meter lot will be five cents a half hour with a maximum of three hours time on each meter.

"No pennies will be accepted by the meters, it'll be all nickels and dimes," he said.

Entrance to the lot is on Cormorant. Exit is on Fisgard. City council provided $17,500 for demolition of the building and conversion of the site into a parking lot.

They were Leonard G. Bell, 22, of 440 Bay, and Robert C. Williams, 20, of First PCLL, Work Point, who took $18 when they broke open a telephone cash box last Sunday.

Two wheels and tires valued at $45 were taken from a pickup truck left parked at the rear of Gibson's Bowladrome, 914 Yates, before 12:05 a.m., owner W. McCallum, 3060 Wascana, told city police.

ARTHRITIS VICTIMS ON THE WRONG TRACK

'Mail Order Cures' Just Useless

By TONY DICKASON

The situation is sad. Persons seeking help for arthritis—there are many variations of the disease—often fail to go about it the right way.

Pills and potions, says Mary Pack, executive director of the B.C. division, Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, are generally useless.

She made her statement here Friday during a tour of the province's cities and towns where C.A.R.S. services are available.

Many of the "quack" remedies have no basis of a cure whatsoever, she said. Others have an effective aspirin base but are many times more expensive.

While issuing this warning to sufferers from the cruel disease, she pointed out improvement is recorded in 86 per cent of patients treated under age 40; 80 per cent in the 40 to 64 age group, and 73 per cent in the "over 64" group.

This is under medical treatment—no mail order "cures."

During the first 11 months last year, 139 patients were treated at the St. Joseph's Hospital clinic, involving 2,341 visits. Of these, 1,852 were on hospital premises and the remainder through the mobile clinic.

"One in 20 persons in Greater

Victoria has arthritis," she said.

President of the Victoria unit is Douglas Tuck, and secretary is Mrs. Ernest Evans.

There is no cure for arthritis, but the disease can be arrested or given a throw-back. This is accomplished by medically prescribed rest, heat, therapy and medication.

C.A.R.S. in Victoria is a Community Chest agency, and expenditures this year, 1960, are expected to be close to $14,500.

India Applying Brakes On Mounting Population

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—The Indian government is planning a far-reaching campaign to check the rapid increase in population, which is absorbing a large part of the benefits of economic development.

Health officials here disclosed that in the third five-year plan it is planned to spend 20,000,000 rupees (about $40,000,000), or four times the outlay in the current second plan, on family planning programs.

Surveys have shown that the majority of Indians are amenable to family planning, and that religious opposition is limited. The main problems are to inform the country's 45,000,000 people, most of whom are illiterate and live in villages difficult to reach, and to produce an effective contraceptive which is cheap, and easy to use.

BABY BOOM
Every day about 28,000 Indian babies are born. The population is increasing at the rate of nearly 8,000,000 a year and in five or six years will pass the 450,000,000 mark which census commissioner R. A. Gopala has estimated as the maximum population which the country can maintain.

Food production, although it has increased in the last 10 years, has not kept pace with the increase in population, and up to 3,000,000 tons of food grain have to be imported each year, with a dangerous drain on foreign exchange resources.

Family planning has been an integral part of the five-year plans launched since 1951, but it has taken time to build up this organization, initiate research and train field workers. Nearly 1,000 clinics have been opened and some 1,400 maternity and child health centres are giving family planning advice.

Inducements are being offered in many areas for men and women who have had at least three children to be sterilized. The consent of both husband and wife is necessary and the operation is decided on upon the merits of each case. In the last three years, 23,000 people have been sterilized.

EDUCATED CLASS
An interesting sidelight is the fact that nearly half of them have come from the southern state of Kerala, which has the highest educational standard in India. In the three-five-year plan to be launched in 1961 it is planned to open 8,000 clinics in rural areas and 15,000 in towns and cities.

Prime Minister Nehru is fully behind the family planning campaign. But he emphasizes that this alone is no answer to India's problems.

SERMON at Mattins at Christ Church Cathedral Sunday will be preached by Rt. Rev. G. R. Calvert, Bishop of Calgary, formerly dean and rector here. The sermon at evensong will be preached by the dean, Very Rev. Brian Whitlow.

Evangelism Conference At Parksville

The B.C. Conference of the United Church of Canada will hold its first annual conference on evangelism at the Island Hall Hotel, Parksville, starting Wednesday and ending Sunday, Jan. 17.

The conference will be led by Dr. Clark J. Wood and Dr. S. Raynor Smith of the Methodist Church of Washington.

Separate sessions will be conducted during the mid-week for the clergy, and over the weekend for the laity. Attendance at the latter session will be open to both men and women.

Objectives of the conference include enlarging working knowledge of the Christian faith; transforming faith and belief into practice; the practical program of evangelism for laymen, including the effective influence of the local church on the community at large.

Devotional leadership of the conference will be in charge of Rev. Bert Mather, assistant secretary of the board of evangelism and social service at Saskatoon.

Color Lines In Cemetery Under Probe

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Public Utilities Commission says it is investigating the question of racial discrimination in cemeteries. It said this in confirming that persons of Asian and African origin must be buried in special plots at Ocean View Cemetery here.

The Steelworkers Union had protested the practice but the PUC said in a letter to the Vancouver Labor Council that the cemetery's regulations say the persons of African and Asian origin must be buried in areas "set apart for those purposes."

PILGRIMAGE ON WAY

10 Million at 'Holy Dip'

BOMBAY (CP)—Preparations are being completed at Allahabad, in Uttar Pradesh State, for one of the largest gatherings of religious pilgrims in modern times.

Nearly 10,000,000 people are expected to flock to a spot called Triveni Sangham—"confluence of three sacred rivers"—for a holy dip into the icy waters. The ceremonies, beginning in mid-January, will last several days.

The centuries-old festival is called Kumbh Mela, or "fair of the heavenly pot." According to Hindu legend, God sprinkles a heavenly elixir at Triveni Sangham during the festival. A bath on the occasion is said to purify the soul and confer immortality on the bather.

Taking advantage of the huge throngs, the central and state governments have arranged five-year plan exhibitions to portray India's progress in various spheres. Even as the pilgrim has his sacred dip, giant posters will look down on him carrying such slogans as "India marches ahead towards democratic socialism" and "invest in small savings."

To prevent the outbreak of epidemics, every pilgrim must be vaccinated against cholera and smallpox.

The B.C. registrar of land titles, Victor DiCastro, will return as guest speaker at a luncheon meeting of the Real Estate Board of Victoria next Wednesday at noon in the Empress Hotel, to continue a speech he started at an earlier luncheon on the subject, "Contracts for the Sale of Land." It will cover such topics as deeds of land, first and second mortgages, agreements for sale, releases of mortgages, rights of way and easements. There will be a question period.

A revision of the list of British Columbia justices of the peace show there are now 300 active in the province, Attorney-General, Robert Bonner said Thursday. The list had not been revised since 1923 and had contained some 600 names.

January meeting of the Macaulay School PTA will be held in the school auditorium next Tuesday at 8 p.m. Program for the evening will be "Teaching Arithmetic Today," by members of the teaching staff.

... "a great job"

BEGINNING:

THE QUEEN'S BABY

First Child in 103 Years
Born to Reigning Monarch

By GUY JONES

Crowds will surge outside Buckingham Palace one day soon to catch a glimpse of a bare official notice. It will tell Britain and the Commonwealth whether the Queen's third child—the first to be born to a reigning British sovereign for 103 years—is a boy or girl.

How, if at all, will this news change the line of succession to the Throne?

If the Queen's baby is a boy, he will be second in line to the Throne, after the 11-year-old Prince of Wales. If a girl, she will rank after Princess Anne, 9, as third in succession—a place now held by Princess Margaret.

So, whether the baby is a boy or a girl, the birth will shuttle Princess Margaret, who is 29, back to fourth place. After her will come the Duke of Gloucester (the Queen's uncle), 59, then the Queen's cousins, in order—Prince William of Gloucester, 18, Prince Richard of Gloucester, 15, the Duke of Kent, 24, Prince Michael of Kent, 17, and Princess Alexandra of Kent, 23.

Curiously, the 19th and 20th in this royal "Top Twenty" are a baby daughter born in June this year to the Duke and Duchess of Fife, and King Olav of Norway, 56, who is grandson of King Edward VII.

Boy or girl, the baby will be legally styled "of Windsor." Seven years ago the Queen declared in Council that she and her children should be styled and known as the House and Family of Windsor and that her descendants, other than female descendants who married, and their descendants, should bear the name of Windsor.

The baby will also be born with the title of Royal Highness and Prince or Princess of Great Britain. Should it be a boy, he will, no doubt, be created a Royal Duke at the age of 21.

There are, however, curiously few former Royal ducal titles available. Prince Charles is both Duke of Cornwall and Duke of Rothesay; Edinburgh is a Royal Dukedom; and Cambridge has virtually ceased to be one.

A Boy Could Be 'Duke of Ottawa'

Two others stand out as strong possibilities—the Royal Dukedoms of York and Clarence. Since both her father and grandfather before succeeding to the Throne were Dukes of York, the Queen will obviously prefer the former title.

It has been suggested that he might also be given a Commonwealth title. And since Canada is the senior Commonwealth nation, he could become "Duke of Ottawa."

The position will be vastly different if the baby is a girl. As Princess Anne would be the elder daughter it is practically certain that one day she will become the Princess Royal (the present Princess Royal, the Queen's 62-year-old aunt, is 11th in line of succession).

So any sister she may have would simply be known as Princess.

Then again, boy or girl, the whole situation will change if Prince Charles marries and has children. In that event, the right of succession would pass to his descendants.

This can be illustrated by the tortuous route by which the present Queen came to the throne.

In 1892 the Prince of Wales—eldest son, the Duke of Clarence, died unmarried at 28. His younger brother, the Duke of York, thus inherited the succession.

The Prince of Wales succeeded Queen Victoria as

Last-Minute Goal Gives Wings Tie

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bill McNeill's goal with 26 seconds remaining after Detroit Wings had yanked goalie Terry Sawchuk from the ice earned the Red Wings a 3-3 tie with the New York Rangers today in a NHL game at Madison Square Garden.

The tie was a keen disappointment to Ranger goalie Lorne "Gump" Worsley, who performed brilliantly in the nets and turned aside a total of 43 shots during the contest.

The Rangers' lead from the second period when they broke a 1-1 tie on goals by Larry Popen and rookie Bob Kabel, who also had scored New York's first goal early in the first period.

Norm Ullman's goal for the Red Wings at 11:44 of the middle stanza narrowed the Rangers' lead to 3-2 and Ullman also had a hand in the goal that gave Detroit the tie.

WILKIE, BILKIE ... AND KERRY

Newly-born twin lambs, Wilkie and Bilkie, owned by William C. Turner, 939 Sayward Road, signify the start of the lambing season on Vancouver Island. They were quickly adopted by Mr. Turner's daughter, Kerry, aged 4. From now until March the Island's sheep population will be renewed by these little woolly lambs. But they won't be all twins.

'Stew' to Get Equal Billing

OTTAWA (UPI)—The federal government is cracking down on misleading labels on food containers.

The new regulations being brought in by the food and drug directorate of the health and welfare department require canners and packers to tell the housewife exactly what she is buying.

This will cut out much-criticized practices like that of printing "beef" in larger type than "stew" on beef stew containers.

The net contents of the package will have to be marked on the main panel of the label.

The new labelling laws also will require the common name of a food to be printed in identically-sized print after the name of a food if it contains more than one word, like asparagus cuttings or flaked tuna.

The complete list of ingredients will have to be shown in one place instead of scattered over the container.

CANADA, CHINA NEXT ON LIST FOR MONTY

LONDON (AP)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery arrived home today from talks with India's Prime Minister Nehru and disclosed he will visit Peking next May to see Red China's leader Mao Tse-tung.

Before going there, he said, he will first visit Canada, in April.

He told reporters at London Airport that the Nationalist Chinese government on Formosa doesn't count at all.

"The true government of China is in Peking—that which governs 600,000,000 Chinese."

Dies in Crash

A Saanich man was one of two drivers killed in a two-car crash near Woodbridge, Ont., Friday night.

He was Cornelius Leonard Mitchell, 25, son of Col. Reginald L. Mitchell, retired, of 2500 Sinclair Road.

The accident, in which another person was hurt, occurred about two miles west of Woodbridge, a Toronto area community on highway seven.

Trevor Chappell, 20, of Bolton, Ont., was identified as the other driver.

$2.5 Million Goal After Bennett Offer

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Target in the Victoria University Building Fund drive is certain to be raised to $2,500,000 from $1,500,000 following a campaign dinner inaugurating the drive.

Campaign chairman R. B. Wilson said today the executive committee will meet Monday to discuss Premier Bennett's offer at the dinner Friday night to match every dollar raised up to $2,500,000.

"I feel it is inevitable we will accept the premier's proposal," Mr. Wilson said, "and we are calling the committee together to discuss it formally."

Premier Bennett made his surprise announcement to a distinguished audience of 150

representing Victoria, Vancouver Island and Vancouver at the dinner in the Union Club.

"This government will gladly match, not $1,500,000, your present objective, but $2,500,000 over a period of five years."

"If you raise the $2,500,000, we will match every dollar on the basis of not more than $500,000 in any one year."

The premier's offer was received with resounding applause from every corner of the room.

Old Buildings Gift From Province

He added that the government would transfer the old Victoria College buildings, administered by the B.C. public works department, plus the new buildings, to the board of governors of the new university.

"The transfer will be made absolutely free of charge," he said.

Introduced by Mr. Wilson as "the biggest shareholder in this enterprise," Premier Bennett said he did not agree with the idea of putting up temporary buildings on the college's Lansdowne campus to provide accommodation for the big influx of new students next September.

"Keep away from temporary buildings," he advised. "Start planning now and begin building as soon as possible so that you will have some real buildings next September."

The premier also disagreed with an earlier statement by Dr. A. E. Grauer, chancellor of the University of British Columbia, that it might be hard to raise $1,500,000 for the new university.

'No Place in B.C. Has More Money'

"There is lots of money in British Columbia and no place in this province has more money than Victoria."

He said financial experts at first advised the UBC development fund to seek only $2,000,000 while the provincial government offered to match monies raised up to $10,000,000.

"Today the UBC fund is approaching $10,000,000."

He urged that the new university should be called the University of Victoria and that it should co-operate at all times with the University of British Columbia.

Dr. George Edward Hall, president of the University of Western Ontario, who was guest speaker at the dinner, said:

"Victoria College, within the great University of British Columbia, is a significant part of the university structure of Canada."

"Its 57 years of growth, its survival and its present development is a monument to its founders and a reminder of its greatness in the making." (See Page 13.)

Advance Donations of $200,000

Mr. Wilson gave the campaign a spirited send-off by announcing that already, before the campaign was officially underway, they had commitments amounting to nearly $200,000.

The faculty and staff of Victoria University had subscribed $27,604 towards the fund.

Four professors had pledged $5,806—an average of $1,470 each.

Fourteen assistant professors had pledged an average of $567 each.

Judge J. B. Clearihue, chairman of Victoria University Council, and Mrs. Clearihue had pledged $5,000. Individual gifts included one for $7,500 and others of considerably higher amounts had been promised.

"Already several industrial firms have signified their generous support with pledges and cash in line with our hopes.

"We have received one donation of $25,000 and one of $50,000. One local firm has indicated a pledge of $25,000 provided there is a comparable effort by others in the community."

"In a campaign of this size," said Mr. Wilson, "many gifts will be spread over a period of years. Our objective is to receive most of the money within a three-year period. But already we have indications that many will be using a five-year period. And a longer term will be available for those who desire it."

"The income tax provisions are an incentive for both persons and corporations."

'THOUSAND DAYS' TO MARS AND BACK

LONDON (AP)—Soviet scientists have worked out the cosmic route for a flight to Mars and back, Moscow radio reported today.

Prof. Dmitry Martynov was quoted as saying that such a trip would take about 1,000 days.

He said the flight to the planet would take 275 days, the spacemen would have to spend about a year there awaiting a favorable opportunity to take off again, and the return journey to earth would take another 275 days.

"A trip to the nearest planets is quite feasible," Martynov said.

"The atmosphere on Mars contains carbon dioxide, oxygen and a certain amount of water. The temperatures are relatively moderate, reaching 20 degrees centigrade (68 degrees Fahrenheit) during the day on the equator and falling to minus 60 at night."

"Life is possible, and there are signs of vegetation and possibly micro-organisms. The only planet in our solar system where man could find acceptable living conditions is Mars, and it is no coincidence that it is now attracting so much attention from astronomers throughout the world."

When it comes t' passin' aroun' millions fer th' College, Master Bennett sez, "Take two, they're small."

M' Uncle Zeke aif! so sure about them new labels t' tell what's in th' can. Sez sometimes mebbe it's better not t' know.
